OAKLAND HOMES BURN; 4 RESCUED

Today

One More Day.
Welcome Merger.
Two Smiled, One Yawned.
The Little, and the Big.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ONE DAY LEFT of this year, then no more 1930. Much has been done, in one day. In one day Newton got the idea on which he based his formula of the law of gravitation, that still controls the stars in their courses, Einstein notwithstanding.

In one hour Mirabeau made his speech in the Salle Du Jeu Des Plumes and in another hour Camille Desmoulins made his speech in the Palais Royal. Those two speeches probably made the French Revolution a great blessing to the human race. Everything is done by thinking, and the last day of a year is a good thinking day.

PRESIDENT HOOVER announces plans for merging four Eastern railroad systems, to save unnecessary overhead, and stop waste.

Public ownership of railroads that works admirably in Canada and elsewhere being out of the question here, the merger is good news.

This most wasteful of countries wastes in industrial enterprises enough to finance the other countries of the world.

In oil, for instance, foolish, unrestricted, wasteful drilling has cost the country more in the last few years than the ten billion dollars sent to Europe.

And if anybody suggests permitting economy through consolidation he is told that the fossilized Sherman act will put him in jail.

YESTERDAY NEW JERSEY killed three young men in the electric chair. Two went to death smiling, one yawned, affecting boredom.

Capital punishment does not discourage murder.

If the criminal knew that his crime meant imprisonment for life, at hard labor, with no faintest hope of reprieve, he would not say:

"It's all over in a second."

SCIENTISTS GATHERED in Cleveland and elsewhere continue to amaze you. Dean Lipman of the University of California proves that life "can remain dormant for millions of years." Living organisms have been taken from deep coal mines in Wales and Pennsylvania. With no food, their life had continued through millions of years.

Life could come to this planet from the outside universe, at the proper time, even though it had a long way to come.

A FRENCH scientist, Prof. Thevenin, writing in the American Weekly, says microbes, which were the first living things on earth, would also be the last.

When the earth grows cold and the last man dies, the microbes will be here to see him die, and hasten his end.

JOHNS HOPKINS University proves by Dr. Barnett Cohen, of the medical school, that bacteria of which thousands might be unnoticed in a corner of your eye, can develop little electric batteries of their own.

Two spoonfuls of such bacteria, in the cells of a battery can send one one-hundred thousandth of an ampere a minute through 300 ohms of resistance.

It's a remarkable universe, whether you consider things so small that the telescope does not show them, or things a million times as big as our sun, which in turn is a million times as big as our earth.

YOU KNOW that matter is made of molecules, molecules of atoms, each atom a little solar system with electrons revolving around a central nucleus.

How big is an electron?

Dr. Stebbins, of the University of Wisconsin, gives you an idea of their "bigness" by telling you that the current of a 100 watt incandescent lamp consists of about 10,000,000,000,000,000,000 (ten followed by 18 ciphers) a second.

ALBERT LASKER, enjoying sunshine on Miami Beach, tells his friends

"The country is suffering from over PREDICTION."

This change from the worn out "over production" explanation is said to have been invented by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald.

SOME PREDICTIONS are becoming quite frank, Newcomb Carlton, for instance, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, says:

"America was financially drunk for eight or ten years, and we can't expect to get over the headache in a week or a month."

It would be more comprehensive to say that the whole world was drunk, beginning in 1914, spent 250 billions of dollars, more than 20,000,000 lives, and is now beginning to pay the bill.

TWO NEW YORK boys, 15 and 16 years old, sons of a well-known business man, went to a party. Truthful, they told their father where they had been

Clearing House Ban Here Upsets Racketeers, Quick Makeshift Agreed Upon

Pittsburgh's million-dollar numbers racket this afternoon was slowly and none too certainly emerging from a state of confusion which for a time threatened its existence.

After several conferences of all the "big-shot" numbers barons in the city and county, they decided to substitute, for the New York Clearing House figures, the total sales figures of the New York Stock Exchange.

They resorted to these figures after they had been thwarted in their plan to use figures obtained from the exchanges and balances of the Pittsburgh Clearing House and the balances of the U. S. Treasury.

CLEARING HOUSE BAN

Just a half hour after the numbers racketeers had announced their substitution today the directors of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, through Manager Carl G. Fogle, revealed that the figures would not be published after today—this simply to thwart the numbers racket men.

Reliable sources reported that the racketeers were none too confident of the success of the total sales figures. In their search for a new set of figures they sought one which they were convinced was beyond "fixing."

The new number will be formed from the 10,000 column, the 1,000 column and 100 column. Thus yesterday's total sales of 3,431,115 shares would have produced this winner, 311.

At this afternoon's huddle the numbers men decided that all the agents' books shall be closed at 10 a. m. and that winners, if any, shall be paid off the following day.

PRESIDENT ASSAILED ON RAIL PACT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—President Hoover's indorsement of the four-system railroad consolidation in the East brought sharp criticism today from Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Couzens bluntly characterized the President's action as "unethical." He said:

"While I hesitate to criticise the ethics of the President of the United States, the issuance of this statement (praising the plan) by him, in my judgment, is most unethical."

SWAYS COMMISSION

Declaring that there is a rapidly growing public opinion that the President determines the action of independent commissions, Couzens expressed the fear whether the Interstate Commerce Commission could now give the merger "independent" consideration. He said:

"Everyone knows the power and influence of presidential approval, and everyone knows that these commissioners owe their positions to the President of the United States."

Couzens issued his statement after he had conferred with Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, who outlined the merger terms.

A Political Chameleon Is Exactly What Senator Norris Is NOT

THE difference between a politician and a statesman is that a politician is true to his party and a statesman is true to his principles.

But Senator Norris is a statesman. He has propounded as many sound and progressive policies as any senator in the history of the Congress. He has consecrated his life to his principles.

He cannot compromise them for political advantage.

He cannot abandon them for party fealty.

He cannot shift them for party expediency.

SENATOR NORRIS' principles are good Republican principles—the kind of principles which a good Republican like Lincoln might maintain and did maintain.

Senator Norris actually BELIEVES in a government of the people by the people and for the people.

If the Republican party prefers to commit itself for purely financial reasons to a government of the power trust by the power trust and for the power trust, or to a government of the international bankers by the international bankers and for the international bankers, Senator Norris does not feel called upon to follow the Republican party into this betrayal of ITS principles and HIS.

That is statesmanship; and moreover it may turn out to be very sound politics, too.

Perhaps the people think more of principles than they do of parties.

Perhaps the people think more of a sincere, conscientious public servant like Senator Norris than they do of the slavish party henchmen who are willing to sacrifice their principles in the squalid hope of holding on to their jobs.

CERTAINLY the people of Nebraska, who are a pretty intelligent lot of good Americans, thought more of Senator Norris than they did of the skulking partisan assassins who were using power trust contributions in the effort to destroy the Senator.

The people of Nebraska thought Senator Norris was a faithful public servant.

The people of Nebraska approved of Senator Norris' principles and of his devotion to principle: and after all, this is a representative government, and it is the people of Nebraska whom Senator Norris is representing.

Anyhow, there in the Senate of the United States, representing the people of Nebraska, sits Senator Norris.

And he is there not because he is a "political chameleon," but because he is NOT a "political chameleon."

He does NOT change his principles with every shift of political wind or every turn of party tide.

He is NOT a cheap politician, true to his party no matter what hue or shade of principle or lack of principle his party may take on.

HE IS NOT like the political chameleon who went pink when his party went pink, and went blue when his party went blue, and went yellow when his party went yellow, and finally got on a Scotch plaid of contradiction and inconsistency and "busted."

Senator Norris emphatically has NOT "busted."

He has stood steadfastly by his opinions.

4 INJURED BATTLING FLAMES

Fire Sweeps 3 Buildings; Girl Awakens Families; Women Carried to Safety

Four firemen were injured, one seriously, and three persons were overcome by smoke when fire early today swept through three buildings at 312, 314 and 316 Meyran avenue, Oakland, and drove several families from their homes. Firemen from eight companies called on two alarms fought the flames more than three hours.

The injured firemen were William Brennan, 31, of 331 Michigan avenue, member of Engine Company No. 14, concussion of the brain and body bruises; John Kane, 33, of 4 Jumonville street, Engine Company 4; William Hopkins, 52, of 517 Hastings street, Engine 14, and William Herbert, Negro, of 2338 Webster avenue, Engine 58, all suffering cuts and bruises and from the effects of smoke. All were taken to Mercy Hospital.

FOUR CARRIED OUT

William Evans, his sister, Miss Linda Evans, and their mother, were carried from their home at 314 Meyran avenue, overcome by smoke. They were sent to Montefiore Hospital. Miss Sarah McLaughlin was carried from her apartment at 312 Meyran avenue when the flames spread to that building.

The fire started in a three-story brick structure at 314 Meyran avenue, ocupied by B. G. Evans, his brothers, William H., Leonard

JOFFRE SINKING, HEART FAILS

PARIS, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Marshal Joffre, of France, fighting a losing battle for life in the clinic of the Brothers of St. Jean de Dieu, was visibly weakening today after a gradual ebbing in strength throughout the night.

His physicians issued the following bulletin:

"Despite alarming respiratory symptoms during the night, the patient remains conscious, but he is visibly weakening. His pulse is increasing rapidly while the arterial pressure is diminishing."

Dr. Boulin told newspapermen that the marshal had suffered a heart attack during the night.

HOOVER'S AIDE POISONED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Lieut. Bruce Settle, junior naval aide to President Hoover, who fell dead Monday in his office at the navy yard, died from the effects of a powerful poison, the special board of inquiry appointed by the Navy Department, reported to the district authorities this afternoon.

District detectives pushed their investigation of the possibility that Settle's car might have been involved in a hit-and-run accident Sunday night. Four people were injured by a machine similar to his, which bears unmistakable evidence of a crash of some sort.

BARTHELMESS' CHILD IN N.Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Mary Hay Barthelmess arrived in New York from Hollywood with the dignity of her eight years and enough clothes to last her for a six months' visit with her mother, Mary Hay, dancer, and divorced wife of Richard Barthelmess, the movie actor.

With her came a letter from Barthelmess itemizing each garment in the child's wardrobe and declaring he expected every article to be returned with the child whether worn out or not.

Miss Hay, in a statement, denied she had misused a $2,500 annual income from a trust fund.

Just One Secret About New Year Rum--Its Formula

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Drinking that holiday liquor will give you the longest holiday you ever got.

You can get all you want. The only thing secret about bootleg booze is the formula.

In mud-Victorian times tomorrow was always egg-nog day. Not the kind of eggs the government is dropping into its official nog. And the old-timers used to prefer their garlic hanging on the attic rafters.

But we defy the government to make the stuff taste any worse.

In fact, it is liable to discover that its bad egglets are giving holiday rum a new, racy tang much prized and appreciated in the suburban, horsey set.

Personally, we don't care to take ether with the New Year like an operation.

But the habit has spread from coast to coast. It's no local anesthetic.

WABASH GOES TO P.R.R.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Representative Hoch of Kansas, announced today that the Wabash railroad would become a part of the Pennsylvania system under new consolidation proposals.

Hoch, a member of the House interstate commerce committee, said he had been authorized to announce this aspect of the plan for four great eastern systems.

President Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, will go to Kansas City for a conference in connection with it early in January, he said.

Under the consolidation plan of the Interstate Commerce commission, the Wabash, in combination with the Seaboard Air Line, would have become the basis for a fifth eastern trunk system.

'Roving Constable' Tilt Makes Officers Riotous

A meeting of the Constables' Beneficial Protective Association of Allegheny County, held in the Courthouse, today ended in a riot after heated speeches preceding the organization's action condemning "roving constables."

Constable J. Frank Bell, of Homestead, a former county detective, charged:

"A deputy constable from Glenfield offered me $600 if I would deputize him to work in Homestead."

Another constable took affront at Bell's remarks. Hostilities were averted between the two for the moment, but were renewed in a hall outside the witness room after the meeting had adjourned, according to those present. Others swarmed around the combatants and finally succeeded in separating them. The glass window of a corridor door was shattered during the melee.

Dry agents who take constables with them into all parts of the county to aid in liquor raids were said to have prompted the outburst against the practice of constables going outside their own bailiwick, although no mention of the agents was made publicly.

The meeting passed unanimously a resolution recommending that roving constables be eliminated.

Before the trouble started District Attorney A. T. Park addressed the organization, urging co-operation with county detectives. A committee, consisting of E. P. Murray, Bellevue, president; Fred Boehmer, Twenty-ninth Ward, and Henry C. Cohn, financial secretary, was named to go to Harrisburg and urge passage of legislation for increase in fees and codification of laws pertaining to constables' duties.

CRIME IN PITTSBURGH BREAKS ALL RECORDS IN 1930

54 KILLINGS NEW MARK FOR CITY

Taking of human life, major thefts, stealing automobiles and arrests for drunkenness in Pittsburgh in 1930 showed an increase, in some instances of tremendous proportions, over the crime record of 1929.

Public safety reports made available today show that murders averaged four and one-third for each month of 1930, while the average for the preceding year was three, plus. Fifty-four persons were slain in the city during this year. The number for 1929 was 38.

Arrests for drunkenness showed the greatest increase of any year since prohibition was placed on the statute books. Arrests for the year totaled 67,074, of which 37,691 were for drunkenness. In 1929 there were 59,148 arrests for all causes, 28,187 being for inebriety.

DRINKING CAUSES

Police attribute the heavy increase in drinking to lack of employment and worry of individuals over financial conditions.

The increase in murders is attributed to the increase in drinking.

In major thefts, two bank holdups, with loot totaling nearly $60,000, and a number of store holdups in which bandits got thousands of dollars in cash and jewelry, constitute a new record for all time in city police annals.

AUTO THEFTS GROW

Stealing of automobiles seems to be an increasingly popular pastime. In the past year a total of 4,881 cars were stolen and 4,485 recovered by police or car owners, leaving the number unaccounted for at 369. Arrests for auto stealing in the year totaled 469.

In 1929 there were 4,734 autos stolen, 4,531 recovered and 633 arrests. This record shows that while more cars were stolen in 1930, and about the same percentage of recoveries made, there was a decided falling-off in arrests for this crime.

Frank Boyd, inspector of detectives, sees in the unemployment situation a reason for petty crimes. Heads of families, without work, were driven to theft and arrested for the first time in their lives, Boyd said.

Arrest records show that 57 per cent of detentions for all classes of crime was of persons between 20 and 30 years of age.

'NUMBER' FAILS TO PAY, 1 HELD

Mrs. Cora Matthews, a widow, of R. D. 7, Bellevue, testified in Central Police Court today that after picking a winning number in the Clearing House lottery, entitling her to about $35, she was unable to collect from Raymond L. Howell, 35, "city," to whom she had paid a nickel.

Howell admitted selling numbers chances to supplement shingle selling, his usual occupation, and said he spent the money he collected. He was held for court, charged with operating a lottery, by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. He was arrested yesterday in Diamond street on complaint of Mrs. Matthews.

HOLIDAY TREAT GIVEN 'JUNGLE'

Residents of the Banksville road "Jungle" today stocked their larders for New Year's Day from two big delivery trucks, and their wood boxes from a big piano truck, furnished by officials and employes of Boggs & Buhl's store.

Representatives of the company accompanied the trucks to the "Jungle," where almost a hundred unemployed men, forced by circumstances to seek shelter in flimsy wooden and cardboard shacks, lined up with baskets and bags.

Bread, wieners, canned goods, vegetables and cakes were distributed, and after they were stored away in the makeshift homes, the men lined up to receive a ration of wood for their fires.

East River Tunnels To Supply 1,200 Jobs

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—More than 200 men will be employed as soon as work is started on twin vehicular tunnels under the East River, and later 1,000 others will be added, it was announced today.

Work will start within three months, it was said, following approval yesterday by the War Department for an application for the $50,000,000 project. The tunnels will lie nearly 50 feet under water.

No Permit, Police Radio Plan Delayed

The establishment of a temporary broadcasting station for police work in Mt. Washington Police Station, is being delayed by the failure of the Federal Radio Commission to forward a permit, Public Safety Director James M. Clark said today. Receiving sets for police cars and equipment for the new station, made possible by the new city budget, are ready, Clark said. A request for a license was made by Clark a week ago.

MORGUE-JAIL CHAPLAIN DEAD

He had been in failing health for a year.

He conducted last rites over hundreds of unclaimed bodies at the morgue. He had been minister of Bethlehem Church for 20 years, and was well known in the South Hills district. He leaves his wife and two sons, Paul and Ralph Beiswenger, and a daughter, Mrs. Charles Fabrey, all of Pittsburgh.

OLD TAG USERS FACE ARREST

No extension of time will be granted motorists to use 1930 license tags after midnight tonight, Inspector of Traffic Jacob Dorsey today informed the Pittsburgh Motor Club. Although Dorsey has received no communication from Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, regarding new plates, he said the law will be enforced and drivers may expect arrest within five minutes after the 1930 plates become illegal.

Approximately 700,000 motorists in the state will not have their 1931 license plates by midnight. Many sets of tags mailed during the last two days will not reach owners until the day after New Years. According to Inspector Dorsey, members of the state highway patrol will make a close check on illegal plates and the officers will patrol city streets as well as state highways.

HOOVER SCORED FOR BACKING MERGER

four major carriers, the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate system.

DELAY LIKELY

The Couzens anti-merger resolution is now before the House, with little chance of that or any other merger legislation passing the lower body at this session.

Couzens said that unless the merger was shown to be in the interest of the public he would oppose it and press vigorously for action on his prohibiting resolution. He was joined by Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, who observed he would have to be convinced it was in the interest of the public and that all employes of the affected roads were assured their jobs. Wheeler said he approved transcontinental mergers which would make possible freight rates without regard to zones.

Senator Howell (Rep.), of Nebraska, said he could find no economy in the proposal, and that the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee should study the proposal carefully.

AWAIT INFORMATION

Representative Huddleston (Dem.), of Alabama, member of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, expressed surprise that the President had taken a hand, while Representative Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, ranking minority member of the House committee, criticized the President for his action in indorsing the merger.

SUSPECT FACES TEST AT BANK

Joseph Harris, 27, held in connection with the $50,000 holdup December 16 of the Manchester Savings Bank and Trust Company, was to be taken to the bank today by city detectives to be viewed by bank employes.

Arrested on the North Side Monday after his picture had been identified from Bertillon files, Harris denied participating in the robbery. In the detective bureau yesterday three employes of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, whose garage on the North Side was held up November 29, tentatively identified the suspect as the man who carried the shotgun when six bandits walked into the place and robbed 12 persons, one a woman.

Edward Pishney and Harry Hoover, two or the three alleged Perry State Bank bandits under arrest in New York, will be returned here tonight, detectives said. The third, Benjamin Lepkowitz, suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by a New York officer, is in the Fordham Hospital. Extradition will follow his recovery.

FISHER MAY FILL DREW VACANCY

Judge James B. Drew will tender his resignation from the Common Pleas bench in Allegheny County to Gov. John S. Fisher next Monday morning.

Gov. Fisher, it is said, knows the resignation will be forthcoming and, if he chooses, may make the appointment of an Allegheny County attorney to take Judge Drew's place as a recess appointment, not requiring confirmation of the Senate. It would be the retiring Governor's chance to put a friend in office.

The friend considered as most likely to get the appointment is Judge D. M. Miller, of County Court.

TWO BUS LINES ASK PERMITS

Certification of the applications of the Blue Ridge Transportation Company and the Penn Bus Lines, proposing a co-ordinated bus service between Washington and Uniontown, by way of Brownsville, would provide similar service to other cities in adjoining states, the Public Service Commission was told at a hearing yesterday.

The Blue Ridge company applied for permission to transport passengers from Washington, Pa., to Brownsville by way of Laboratory, Clyde, Strabane, Odell, Beallsville over the National pike, and the Penn company seeks to complete the route to Uniontown by way of Haddenville, Searights and Brier Hill.

Modern 25-passenger buses would be used, it was said, and eight trips in each direction would be made daily, with the fare established at 60 cents.

CITY SPURNS LOW BID ON GARBAGE

The Modern Service Company, which bid for the city garbage and rubbish contracts, was refused the job for 1931, although its figures were considerably lower than competing bidders.

The American Reduction Company will continue to remove waste matter from Pittsburgh, except from the North Side, and the Allegheny Garbage Company will do the collecting in that section. Both are under the same management and have had a monopoly on the garbage and rubbish contracts for many years.

The Modern Service Company planned to collect and ship the garbage to Youngstown for disposal and to burn the rubbish locally pending the erection of four modern incinerating plants.

DEFEND ACTION

A statement issued today by Controller J. P. Kerr, Dr. C. H. Baits, director of the Health Department, and C. A. Waldschmidt, city solicitor, said:

"In the matter of rubbish and garbage contracts, we have made a proper study of the proposed means of collecting and disposal of the Modern Service Company. We are convinced that with their proposed organization and without plant or equipment to function at the beginning of the year, the city could not, in the interest of health and sanitation, award them the contract, as obstacles in the way of their successful fulfilment of the terms of the contract for the first few months of the year are too great."

"This is not alone a matter of capital, as we believe the company could be financed, and we are firmly convinced that th's is an opening to future competition in this matter.

"The new company deserves commendation on the start it has made, and with plant equipment and personnel, it can be made a formidable factor in the collection and disposal of garbage and rubbish in the city, which would result in large savings to Pittsburgh."

POINTS TO SAVING

C. B. Prichard, attorney for the Modern Service Company, this afternoon called a meeting of the officers of the company to discuss the negotiations it had with the city. Prichard said:

"I am satisfied that within a few weeks after awarding of the contract we would have had our incinerator and plant ready for operation. We were prepared to post bond to guarantee the disposal of all waste matter. We regret that we have not been given the opportunity to save the city more than $100,000 a year."

Miss Nydes Leaves Paris on Way Home

PARIS, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—After nearly two weeks spent in sightseeing in the French capital, Miss Anna Nydes, of Pittsburgh, winner in that city of the Gloria Swanson trip to Paris, offered through the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, left today for Havre to sail for home on the Ile de France. Before boarding her train she said:

"Now I know how Alice felt in Wonderland. Paris is beautiful, and I had a glorious time. I hope to return some day."

He thought Mr. Hoover might not make a very popular president.

WELL!

He thought Mr. Hoover might still be a Wilson Democrat.

WELL!

He thought that Mr. Hoover had lived so long in foreign countries that he might favor foreign entanglements.

WELL!!

He thought that the voters ought to have some show for their white alley, and that the government ought not to be run entirely in the interest of the power trust and the international bankers.

Well! There are a whole lot of us plain American citizens who agree with Senator Norris and who are glad that we still have some STATESMEN who are NOT political chameleons.

Coolidge Makes Appeal For Justice to Business

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

We need a better understanding between business and government. It would be well to temper regulation with co-operation and season restriction with encouragement.

The solicitous care given labor and agriculture by the government has generally worked to the public advantage. When the representatives or individual members of these interests make mistakes they are not charged against the whole organization. But in commercial business the errors of one are usually considered to reflect on the whole group. All legitimate business is entitled to governmental consideration.

Calvin Coolidge

Business is involved not only in matters of regulation but in the whole broad field of the domestic and foreign policy of the government. All these relationships vitally affect the welfare of the people.

It would be contrary to sound policy for business or any organization to engage in an effort to dominate political or governmental action by meddling in what does not concern them. That would warrant a revival of criticism against invisible government. But when industry will be affected by governmental action it ought to be heard sympathetically and without the implication of seeking domination contrary to the public interest. We cannot have employment and prosperity except on the basis of justice to business.

DRYS, ANTIS SEE TEST IN 1931

Both Factions Agree Next Year Will Bring Liquor Issue Near Showdown

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—It is seldom that the radical drys and the radical anti-drys can agree upon anything concerning prohibition.

Yet, strange as it may seem, this closing day of 1930 found the Anti-Saloon League in agreement with its principal opposition, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, that the dawning year of 1931 is going to prove a crucial one in the history of the prohibition experiment.

Differ as they may, and do, on every other phase of prohibition, officials of the two organizations concede that the new year will bring things much closer to a showdown.

LEAGUE CONFIDENT

In its annual review of conditions at the close of the year, the League had this to say today:

"By the end of 1931, the nation will be nearer to the ultimate decision as to whether America is to license liquor and pay the price, or prohibit intoxicants and derive the benefit."

Continuing, the League's statement set forth, of course, that ultimately the decision will be to its liking. It pointed out that the present seventy-first congress is overwhelmingly dry, and the new seventy-second congress, which comes into office next year, only a little less so.

ANTIS OPTIMISTIC

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment did not issue any review today, as did the league, but its officials radiated that optimism that comes only from a sense of steady progress throughout the year just ending. They pointed to the striking anti-dry gains rolled up in the November elections, indicating a remarkable drift of public opinion against existing conditions even in such hitherto dry states as Ohio, and expressed the belief that the movement will be accelerated in 1931.

PITTSBURGH READY FOR REVELRY

Price Boosts Reaching Near War Levels; Extra Hour Boon for Cabarets

Baptismal and christening ceremonies of a new infant, Young Mr. 1931, will be observed in varying forms in Pittsburgh tonight and early tomorrow.

The whoopee parlors are all set for celebrations that would seem to give the lie to talk of financial depression. Cabarets and other haunts where bacchanalian revels are unconfined have raised their prices to figures only comparable with times when war work paid the common laborer a bank president's stipend. And the reservation lists are reported very well filled if not running over.

One of the big events tonight will be the annual potentate's reception and ball at Syria Mosque.

GIVEN EXTRA HOUR

Public Safety officials have announced that night party places may stay open until 2 a. m. Thursday, which is an hour longer than they are allowed on other nights, but hardly as long as most of them remain with gates ajar to give comfort to the hungry and thirsty wayfarer. And the whoopee legions smirk and wink when the 2 o'clock for tomorrow morning closing hour is mentioned.

Banking houses, most stores and public offices will be closed Thursday.

NEW YORK CELEBRATES

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight on account of a new deal by Father Time.

In many ways New York will gleefully dethrone old man 1930—symbol of the wolf at the door—and as joyfully crown little boy 1931—symbol of hope. It looks like a gala celebration at cut-rate prices.

In swanky mid-town hostelries, garish East and West Side night clubs, shadowy Harlem cabarets, cigar-box Greenwich Village resorts, private homes, and on the streets from the Bronx Zoo to the reaches of Flatbush, folks will demonstrate as how they're glad it's over.

NEW YEAR'S IN

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—New Year's, riding on radio waves, flashed into this country from Australia some 15 hours ahead of schedule today.

Broadcast greetings from Australia to the people of the United States were received at 9 a. m. eastern standard time, today when Melbourne was welcoming the new year. The greetings were exchanged in direct radio communication between the short wave station 3ME, at Melbourne, and W2XAF, of the General Electric Company.

ORIENT INDIFFERENT

TOKIO, Dec. 31. — (AP.) — It may be 1931 whose advent Christendom is celebrating tonight, but to the vast majority of the inhabitants of Eastern Asia those figures are meaningless.

In Japan they are greeting the sixth year of Showa, and in China they are hoping that the twentieth year of the Republic will bring surcease from the civil wars, famines and bandits that made the nineteenth year one of black memory.

Moreover, there are millions throughout the Orient who do not even regard this as the beginning of a new twelvemonth.

EINSTEIN LANDS IN CALIFORNIA

By LYLE ABBOT
International News Service.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 31.—Dr. Albert Einstein, the universe maker, came here to pay his call on California scientists today. He brought a message of faith in a principle that guides the universe and that some men call God.

With Mrs. Einstein and a secretary, the little German teacher arrived in port aboard the flag-strung liner Belgenland, after a leisurely journey from Hamburg via New York. He said, greeting reporters and photographers:

"Till now I have been feeling much better. I do not know what makes the American people love me so. I appreciate it."

Mrs. Einstein, a home body, with crinkly gray hair and plain clothes, begged 10 minutes more sleep for the professor this morning.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure area that caused the change to colder, is moving rapidly into the Southeast, while the disturbance that was centered over Manitoba advanced to the lower lake region and spread southward over the Ohio Valley states. These rapid changes resulted in a fall in temperature over the East, followed by a rapid rise in the central plains and the Ohio Valley states. The persisting high over the plateau section is now centered over Wyoming and Colorado, and extends northward over the northern plains. This change has caused an unusual drop in temperature over Manitoba and Northern North Dakota. Tonight will not be quite so cold as last night, but cold weather will follow again Thursday night.

TRUCK, TROLLEY IN CRASH

Nearly a score of passengers were severely shaken up when a Butler street car collided with a truck at Seventh and Liberty avenues early today.

RUSS IN BATTLE RAZING CHURCH

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Soviet soldiers began wrecking the Tiraspol Cathedral on the Russian bank of the Dneister today, disregarding groups of the faithful who knelt in the snow chanting prayers, until the believers rushed a bonfire where sacraments and holy pictures were being burned.

Then the cavalry, held in reserve for such an outburst, galloped into the crowd, laying about with the flat side of their sabers. The objectors were dispersed.

Rumanians watched from the other side of the river, raising a great cry as the soldiers laid the sacred articles on the fire, and almost breaking into a panic themselves as the fighting between cavalry and bystanders reached its height.

RICH'S PRISON TERM CUT

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Michigan's "millionaire convict," in the person of young Arthur Rich, the scion of a millionaire steel family, who is serving a life term in the state penitentiary for attacking Miss Louise King, of Washington, Pa., a Battle Creek College co-ed, today was granted a commutation of sentence by Gov. Fred W. Green.

The chief executive reduced the life sentence to not less than 10 years, which, allowing time off for good behavior of young Rich in the penitentiary, will allow the youth's release sometime in 1935.

Rich is the son of George Rich, multi-millionaire Battle Creek steel manufacturer. The father, who stood loyally by his son, is estimated to have expended at least $500,000 in the futile fight for his son's freedom.

SEEK SUSPECT IN SLAYINGS

BLACKWELL, Okla., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Earl Quinn, ex-convict, was brought from Norman, Okla., to Chicago today in connection with the slaying of Zexia and Jessie Griffith, sisters, on a highway near Tonkawa Sunday.

He was named last night by Bruce Potter, Kay County attorney, as the man sought in connection with the slaying of the sisters and at the same time Potter announced a woman under arrest at Tonkawa was Quinn's wife.

Mrs. Quinn, Potter said, purchased a gun and shells in Tonkawa the night before the killings.

The ship added: "save crew," and gave the position 45:48 north latitude and 7:30 west longitude.

GOV. ROOSEVELT DEFIES MACHINE

By RAYMOND I. BORST.
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today was believed to be almost at a breaking point with Tammany Hall and Mayor Jimmie Walker over the investigation of alleged corruption in New York City.

Aroused because Mayor Walker and Corporation Counsel Hilly, of New York, have attacked constitutionality of present investigation by the appellate division, the Governor today served notice on Tammany that the vice probe will be continued even if he has to ask the 1931 Legislature for additional legislation.

Ever since the election, when Roosevelt was swept back into office by the greatest plurality in the state's history, there have been rumblings at the capitol that the day was not far distant when there would be an open break between Roosevelt and Tammany Hall.

Roosevelt is hard pressed for time these days due to the preparation of the address which he will deliver at his inauguration tomorrow, but he took time to issue a statement in which he served notice on Tammany that he is determined to see the investigation through to an end.

Record Cold Wave Fails to Arrive

The threatened cold snap, that was to break the season's low temperature records last night and today, failed to arrive.

The mark at the downtown weather bureau was 16 at 7 and 8 o'clock, with promise of a rapid rise during the day. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said the mercury was rising in nearly all parts of the country.

Yesterday the weather bureau sent out warning that the thermometer was likely to reach 5 degrees last night, which would have been the coldest of the winter.

PARALYTIC ENDS DEATH VIGIL

The 24-hour vigil of a paralytic over the body of his brother, with whom he lived in a shack in a secluded section of Ohio Township, ended last night when two friends dropped in for a visit and found the helpless man gazing upon the still form of the brother.

Simon Yurigo, 40, who had been caring for his invalid brother, died from a heart attack at 8 p. m. Monday. The helpless man, unable to notify anybody of the death, could do nothing but hope for someone to come.

Last night when the friends walked in for a casual visit they found the dead man on a cot and on another cot they found the other brother, weak from hunger and thirst, looking at the corpse. They summoned a funeral director and the body was removed to a North Side undertaking establishment.

AWAKENED, ROUSES OTHERS

Oscar Minier, of 115 Maurice street, and Ralph Brown, of Bates street, who were passing, saw the fire and turned in an alarm. When Lieut. Richard Payne and Wagonmen Michael J. O'Donnell and George Wood, of the Oakland Station, arrived, Minier joined them and aided in rescue work.

Mrs. Evans was found unconscious on the third floor. The son, William, was lying in the hallway on the second floor, while the sister was unconscious on a rear porch roof where she had been pushed through a window by the brother.

OTHER BUILDINGS IGNITE

Before firemen, hampered by low water pressure, could cope with the flames, they had spread to the three-story brick building, at 316 Meyran avenue, occupied by Walter Hatton, his wife and Mrs. Minnie Cassidy, mother of Mrs. Hatton, and then to the two and one-half-story frame building occupied by Miss Sarah McLaughlin and Agnes, Mary and Marian Walker. All were forced out.

Miss McLaughlin, ill in her apartment, was carried downstairs by Lieut. Payne and taken to the home of a neighbor.

$18,000 DAMAGE

MUSIC

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir of Pittsburgh sang its annual performance of Handel's Messiah in Carnegie Music Hall last night. It is always the choir's largest audience on this occasion, and it does seem strange that patrons of this concert, hearing such manificent choral singing, do not bestir themselves to attend the other concerts of this organization when the Mendelssohnians sing just as well and give us newer music.

J. Fred Lissfelt

There was no new feature of the choir's singing on this occasion and Ernest Lunt gave the work its fine dignity. All the soloists have been heard here before. Dan Beddoe, the most favored tenor, was again in excellent form, and Grace Kerns sang with her usual ease. Alta Schultz, a local contralto, is a good musician, and is doing many chores with the choir this season. Frank Cuthbert, basso, completed the solo quartet.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Neva Morris

Neva Morris, chanteuse and children's entertainer, gave a program of traditional and original sketches in Carnegie Lecture Hall yesterday afternoon for a large audience of chil. n and for such parents as were delighted enough to come as chaperones.

The program offered some charming dances by Helen Bennett and some good piano numbers, suitable for the children's corner. Margaret Stoerkel Wilhelm played lighter compositions of Poldini and Leschetitsky, also the Little White Donkey of Ibert, and all the accompaniments for Miss Morris. Accompanying the songs was not so diffecult a matter, but to keep up that constant musical patter during the elocutionist's stories was quite a trick.

Miss Morris offered a simple arrangement of Humperdinck's opera Hansel and Gretel, breaking her story-telling by occasional singing of the beautiful music from German folk lore. Then came the awkward Raggedy Ann with appropriate songs from Tschaikowsky, Hageman, Grant-Schaefer, and a children's fantasy, Adventures in a Fairy Garden, with songs of brownies, elves and fairy pipers.

There is a good understanding of a child's limitations in what Miss Morris plays and sings. Her voice and diction plays to the youngsters, as it should, and that she had a very attentive audience and received not only applause but many a good hearty laugh from the children, assures us that her message struck home.

WAGNER URGES WAGE SECURITY

CLEVELAND, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Industry has no more right to shoulder its unemployed on the community than it has to ask charity to care for its machinery in periods of depression, Senator Robert F. Wagner told the Association for Labor Legislation and Co-operating Organizations last night. He asserted:

"If the wage earner is to be protected in his right to work, it follows that industry must be subjected to a duty of maintaining the continuity of wages.

"It does not strike business as strange that it continues to pay interest though its capital lies idle. Rent is collected though the plant is vacant. In the absence of profits, dividends are paid out of surplus without so much as an intimation that anything unusual is occurring.

"Why should a different policy govern the payment of wages?"

300 MORE BEDS FOR IDLE MEN

An additional floor was opened at the Helping Hand hotel in Water street last night to care for 300 additional unemployed men of Pittsburgh. Capacity conditions were reached last Friday night, according to Harry I. Miller, of the executive commitee, and an emergency call for more beds resulted in the city hospital at Mayview donating 300 army cots for use at the downtown refuge.

The fifth floor has been fitted up as a dormitory with the new allotment of beds, making the third such floor to be converted into sleeping quarters this winter. At present there are sleeping accommodations for 1,900 men at the hotel. About 5,000 meals are given daily. A bed is assigned to each unemployed man and is reserved for him as long as it is used nightly and the occupant is orderly. Only Pittsburgh men may obtain the new beds.

MOLINARI LAUDS PITTSBURGH SYMPHONY

European Guest Conductor Regrets Lack of Musical Interest by Leaders Here

Molinari, before he left the city after the symphony concert Sunday evening, stated that he was thoroughly convinced that the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Antonio Modarelli, will occupy in the near future a place in the musical world.

Concerning Modarelli, Molinari said:

"Modarelli has all the qualifications that a musician needs and more—his heart and his mind are completely devoted to his art."

The European conductor expressed surprise when he learned that the symphony orchestra is not a permanent one. Commenting on the city and its people, he said:

"Although I admire your city for its highly developed industries, for its natural beauty and for the friendliness of its citizens, I regret that there is not a greater interest shown in symphonic music by many of your wealthiest inhabitants."

SEARCH WIDENS FOR 2 IN BANK HOLDUP

Scottdale Bandits, Believed To Have Fled on Train, Hunted Around Uniontown

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Dec. 31.—Search for two bandits in the Broadway National Bank's $20,000 evening holdup spread through Uniontown and the Southwestern part of Pennsylvania today with advancement of the theory by bank officials that the holdup men might have fled from here by train.

Thomas D. Byrne, cashier, found in a rear room of the bank trussed hand and foot in a chair where he said the bandits left him while they looted the open vault, set the approximate time of the holdup at 6:40 p. m. Monday.

Byrne was found by Ernest Overholt, a director, a few minutes before seven. It was a few minutes after seven when state police arrived from Uniontown and Greensburg. Local police were not notified, although Chief Frank Ganoe declared two night patrolmen were standing on the corner near the banking rooms at the time Cashier Byrne said the robbery was taking place.

Byrne and his uncle, John R. Byrne, president of the institution, as well as other officers and employes, were quizzed at length by State police yesterday in an effort to unearth further clues. Cashier Byrne was able to give only a meager description of his assailants who, he said, met him with guns as he emerged from the vault with the bank's books upon which he was working preparatory to the first of the year audit.

Although the bank is situated on the busiest corner in the town, nobody has been found who observed anything suspicious before or during the holdup which Byrne said occurred in a rear room, screened from the gaze of passers-by by high windows, shaded by heavy blinds.

COUNCIL TO ACT ON PAY RAISES IN BUDGET

Final Vote Late in Week; Committee Boosts Wages $30,000; Makes New Jobs

The city's 1931 budget closed by the Finance Committee of Council at $28,500,000 will be acted upon by Council as a whole at a special meeting Friday or Saturday.

The general appropriation bill and the salary ordinance as amended have been sent to the printer. According to W. Y. English, chairman of the Finance Committee, salary increases in the budget aggregate $30,000 to $40,000. There have been a few jobs eliminated largely on work financed through bonds.

150 NEW JOBS

The Finance Committee created approximately 150 new positions, including 50 additional police, and granted 140 pay increases to city employes. A staff for the new police radio station was provided.

The public safety department is given an additional $10,000 for equipment and provisions are made for five additional detectives. The total number of new positions, exclusive of the 50 patrolmen, is estimated at about 100. Many of these will not be filled until the new year is considerably advanced.

Councilman Charles Anderson yesterday raised the question of whether Council should countenance the practice of allowing a department to hire twice as many laborers as have been authorized for them in the budget. He also wanted to know why he has found it impossible to get the names and addresses of laborers in the Department of Public Works. This created a brief stir in the routine, but the committee soon passed on to other business.

Council set up a special $100,000 emergency relief fund which will help to deal with various phases of the unemployment problem, and a $25,000 fund to go directly to the relief of needy families.

EMERGENCY RELIEF

A fund of $75,000 was appropriated for the year for the collection of funds paid by the consumer for the repair and replacement of water meters. A letter from Controller James P. Kerr pointed out that the city will receive about $140,000 in revenue as a result of the expenditure.

A fund of $20,000 was set up for junior playgrounds at 18 city schools. The grounds are furnished free by the School Board.

A councilmanic bond issue, approved by the budget committee, and which will require legislation, provides a total of $235,000. This includes $76,000 for the Duquesne way ramp, $70,000 for the widening of Seventh avenue between Grant street and William Penn way, $10,000 damages at Voskamp and Sussman streets, $10,000 damages in Forward avenue, $15,000 for a physician's residence at Leech Farm, $30,000 for a garage for the Department of Highways and Sewers, $5,000 for a shade tree storage garage and $25,000 for engineering expenses at the Brilliant pumping station.

HAWKS HOLDS SEADROMES AIR NEED

By LAURENCE DUMOND.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The greatest news story in the air in 1931, Capt. Frank Hawks believes, would be the establishment of a line of seadromes across the Southern Atlantic Ocean—a string of floating islands to provide landing and refueling points for a seaplane trans-ocean service.

That would be the biggest aviation story in the world, Capt. Hawks said today.

The most important story to aviation in the United States would be for a flier to traverse our continent in 10 hours, breaking Capt. Hawks' own record of 12 hours 25 minutes set last August 6, he said.

IGNORES SPECTACULAR

Capt. Hawks, in an exclusive interview on the eve of the new year, revealed why he thought these two stories, if they broke in 1931, would be the most important in the year's history of aviation.

The famous flier spoke cautiously about his opinion of the value of spectacular jumps across the ocean in land planes; but he praised the flight of the German Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, who flew from the North Sea to New York in a seaplane, making six stops.

Dirigibles, said the flier, were too bulky, slow and costly. In wartime they made a perfect target. Seaplanes are cheaper and faster.

Capt. Hawks' enthusiasm is for breaking trans-continental records. It is a great stimulus to air transport lines, he said, and fastens interest on American aviation.

He would like to sit back and see someone else break his record. He predicted someone would bring the coast-to-coast time down to 11 hours in 1931, and hopes to see the trip made in 10 hours, next year or some other year.

URGES WOMEN TO FLY

With a gallant gesture, the genial flying captain welcomed all women to take part in developing aviation. If more women learn to fly more women will urge men to fly, instead of holding them back, he said.

The captain's own wife has been his most enthusiastic supporter through 13 years of flying, as commercial aviator at Long Beach, Cal., war instructor, barnstormer, carrying payrolls for oil companies in Mexico, and as aeronautical adviser to an oil company.

He does not see everyone flying about in his own plane, taking off from his own rooftop for the office hangar.

Airplanes, he thinks, will continue to land at airports just as boats put in at their harbors, and if there is any individual use of planes it will be on a scale comparable to the use of motorboats, generally for pleasure. There will be a great interest in high-speed service over long distances, he believes.

The oil-burning airplane engine will fill a big need, said Capt. Hawks, with its lower fuel cost and elimination of explosion and fire danger.

Formula Only Secret About New Year Rum

By Arthur 'Bugs' Baer

The only thing that worries us is that the Senate wants to adjourn and some fools are trying to stop 'em.

Government has put the official plaster on 16 different brands of foreign perfumes.

The perfume committee reports that our domestic perfumes are just as good.

Sweet smells have played an important role in the history of the world although our numerous investigation committees have not yet decided just when a perfume becomes an odor.

The rarest of all perfumes costs $25 an ounce. So far as we are concerned it would be just as rare at $2 an ounce.

The foreign chemists have a neat idea about their perfumery propaganda. First they make a beautiful bottle. Then they fill it with something.

It can be Eau De Glue or concentrated elixir of wet doormat. They give it a glamorous name and we fall for it like the walls of Jericho fell for a trombone solo.

There seem to be two kinds of perfume nowadays. Sniffing. And drinking.

Cleopatra started the perfume industry. She specialized on frankincense and myrrh. But she neutralized this beautiful compound with a bad habit. They say Cleo also knew her onions.

If there is one perfume we remember well it is cloves. A saucer of cloves always stood on the registration end of the old-fashioned bar.

Putting the high tariff on foreign perfumes is part of our program for protection. For the first time in history there is unemployment in Switzerland. They blame that on us. As a matter of fact the Swiss are busier than ever repairing the toys they sold us for Christmas.

Tomorrow is the start of the New Year anyway. There are more serious matters to think about than perfumes and playthings. Have you got your new license plates yet?

President Hoover's new license numbers are from 100 to 110. We are telling you this in case you feel like stopping something.

Since those beer trucks started rolling in from Canada you want to be careful about stopping any kind of vehicle. A hitch-hiker waved at the chauffeur of a trunk up in Michigan last week.

The truck never stopped but the chauffeur threw something at the hitch-hiker. It was a thick package of thousand dollar bills.

NEW DISTRICT HITS FAULKNER

The personnel of the new North Side police district, which was created with the passage of the new budget by council yesterday, will not be announced until after the Mayor signs the bill, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh announced today.

Following the mayor's approval of the budget, Supt. Walsh and Public Safety Director Clark will scan a map of the entire North Side district to determine the new boundry lines. It is believed, however, that the new district will comprise the present Woods Run police district.

With organization of the new district, Inspector Charles Faulkner will be forced to divide his power in the large North Side sector. This power will be shared, it is rumored, with Capt. Anthony Block, now a Faulkner subordinate. Rumor says that Faulkner will slide to Woods Run, while Block will be seated in the present North Side district.

There is also the usual scramble for the other jobs the creation of a new district necessitates, which include a captain, three lieutenants and three sergeants.

Dry Law Victim Aided by Millions

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—A modestly dressed, retiring old man walked into a United States commissioner's court yesterday to sign a bond for a friend charged with violating the prohibition law. The government wanted to know if, as bailor, he was worth the risk and he was handed an affidavit.

He listed himself as Michael Espert, president of the Monarch Refrigerating Company, and when he came to the line "and I am worth" he wrote in the following: "at least $25,000,000." The bond was accepted.

When VAPEX drops in, your cold drops out

Yet the vapor is as pleasant to breathe as crisp mountain air

Colds don't stay with you long while you breathe Vapex. For Vapex checks a cold swiftly and surely.

Your head gets clear . . . your nose opens up . . . all the distress of a cold disappears with a few deep breaths of this delightful inhalant. And it's as pleasant as breathing pure mountain air.

Another important point to remember about Vapex is that it is safe and easy to use. A drop on your handkerchief or a drop at each end of your pillow is all you need, for the vapor keeps its strength all day or night.

Be wary when some one offers you a product that is "just as good as Vapex and cheaper." Vapex is the inhalant approved by Good Housekeeping. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It has never been successfully imitated.

And after all, a single application of Vapex costs only 2c. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications. Ask for V-A-P-E-X always and insist on obtaining it.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr.

When he was a prosperous boxer, Cuddy DeMarco, who was almost a bridegroom the other day, was the best-dressed fighter in town. Cuddy started boxing professionally when he was in his teens and our estimate is that in his years in the ring he drew down purses totaling more than $100,000. A fair share of this went for clothes.

The story has nothing to do with clothes, but a few years ago a boxing writer, who was a good friend of the fighter's, panned Cuddy for a certain fight he had loafed through.

"You know," Cuddy said to the writer, "a lot of fighters would punch you on the nose for writing stuff like that."

"Well," returned the writer, "if you can't punch any better today than you did last night, go right ahead."

* * *

Owen Davis is in town this week for the opening of his 26-year-old son's first stage play, "Made in Hollywood." It has been many years since the father wrote his first play; in fact, he has written more melodramas than any other American author still drawing royalties. And you can bet a pretty penny or a penny that's not so pretty that Mr. Davis will touch up the rough ends of his son's first effort.

Mr. Davis began writing melodramas in the era of "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." He might write one before breakfast, another before lunch and a four-acter before dinner. They might well tell that story of the speedy playwright about Davis.

"He's very busy writing a play," the butler explained.

* * *

"Back," says Mr. Davis, "in the days when the Bijou in Penn avenue was Pittsburgh's big theater, there were times when I'd have as many as 14 plays running on the circuit of 36 houses, of which the Bijou was one.

"It didn't look well to have them all appearing under the name of one author, so I used a half-dozen aliases.

"It happened that one of my plays followed another into the Bijou, so for the second time, which was 'Chinatown Charlie,' I changed the author's name to John Oliver.

"And I shall never forget the Pittsburgh critic who panned the play appearing under my name, complimented Oliver's, and wrote: 'In this young Oliver we have found a man who might teach the terrible Owen Davis how to write melodrama.'" * * *

If you saw the big Christmas tree in the lobby of the City-County Building probably you saw the miniature railroad encircling it. But you don't know how the railroad got there. Mayor Kline was walking out of the building a few days before Christmas when he stopped to examine the tree. He remarked that it seemed to be rather bare and not very Christmasy. Then he told one of the city employes to get a toy railroad and put it under the tree. The employe did.

* * *

One of the most touching bits of poetry the housewives of Pittsburgh have seen was printed on a Christmas card, which was left on countless back doors several days before Christmas. In fact, we shall reprint its last four lines, which are typical:

". . . Please don't forget the Garbage Man,
Who dumps the refuse from your can.
Who goes through rain, hail and snow—
The faithful friend at your back door."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 31.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, the old year is leaving us flat, plenty flat. But in reality it's been our most beneficial year. It took some of the conceit out of us. We had enjoyed special blessings over other nations, and we couldn't see why they shouldn't be permanent. We were a mighty cocky nation. We originated mass production, and mass produced everybody out of a job with our boasted labor-saving machinery. Will Rogers

Will Rogers

It saved labor, the very thing we are now appropriating money to get a job for. They forgot that machinery doesn't eat, rent houses, or buy clothes. We had begun to believe that the height of civilization was a good road, bath tub, radio and automobile. I don't think Hoover the Republicans, or even Russia, is responsible for this. I think the Lord just looked us over, and decided to set us back where we belonged.

Yours, WILL.

Co-Director of Old Silent 'Squaw Man' Is Actor In the Talkie

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Publicity Features.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 31.

Times change. Oscar Apfel, who will play the important part of the sheriff in "The Squaw Man," was co-director with Cecil S. De Mille, when the first version was made in December, 1913.

The scenes were shot in the Paramount studio, which formerly had been a barn. Incidentally, the barn is standing today, but now is a gymnasium filled with dumbbells. (Get there behind me, Satan).

Warner Baxter.

De Mille will modernize the story for his Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talkie version. His leading man will be Warner Baxter. That capable character actor, J. Farrell MacDonald also has a good part. Mr. MacDonald recently turned in his best performance as a guide in Warner Brothers' "River's End."

The dialogue for the new "Squaw Man" is to be done by Elsie Janis.

THE OLD MEANIE

An assistant director with a mad on at a casting official sent him the following wire, collect, for Christmas:

BACK TO CHILDHOOD

Sam Cohn, the publicist, observes that since a recently defunct bank announced that children's savings accounts would be given preference, dozens of Hollywood actors have been riding around on kiddy cars and wearing short pants.

GREAT CRISIS

Tom Geraghty, the writer, says that times are so tough that the Chicago gangsters don't know where their next bullet is coming from.

HOMEWARD BOUND

It seems that Carmel Myer's flyer in vaudeville will be shorter-lived than she had expected.

Carmel Myers

Carmel, being a loyal citizen of Hollywood, accepted, and will return after one week at the Palace.

BLONDE MAKES GOOD

The blondes are still bowling them over. Dorothy Christy, whose attractive comb-backed coiffure you may remember from "So This Is London," will make a picture each for First National and Warner's.

She appears in "Big Business Girl," the Loretta Young starring vehicle at First National, and in Winnie Lightner's "Red-Hot Sinners," at Warner's.

THREAT RAISES SENTENCE

After Joseph Lavindoski, 36, no home, was heard to utter a threat in Central police court today, the charge against him was changed from suspicious person to vagrancy and his sentence to the workhouse was raised from 90 days to six months by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

M. H. Roseman, president of the Wholesale Credit Men's Association, had testified he had seen Lavindoski looking in automobiles parked in front of his place of business and that numerous cars had been looted recently.

Lavindoski admitted being in the workhouse 15 times for auto thefts. As he left the courtroom, he muttered to Roseman:

"I'll get you when I come out, don't forget it."

The magistrate heard the threat and doubled the sentence.

Deception

I asked him how long his love would be,
And he said: As long as an hour with me.

Such hour had neither beginning nor end,
So I heard and sighed contentedly.

I asked him how strong his love would be,
And he said: As strong as the tides of the sea.

Such tides had ridiculed the might of a king,
So I heard and sighed contentedly.

I asked him how true his words would be,
And he said: Only as true as poetry.

So I heard and wept unendingly . . . .

The Very Idea

Melva Cornell of "The New Yorkers" show at the Broadway Theater dwelled in an apartment over that West 45th street speakeasy where gangsters recently killed a man by pumping 21 bullets into him.

Miss Cornell decided to move to more peaceful quarters. The landlord balled her on the way out.

"But I'm afraid," said Melva, "when they fire 21 bullets at a man."

"Ach!" ach'd the landlord.

DURING 1930
Your Telephone Service Grew Measurably
in Scope, Usefulness and Value

IT IS THE AIM and object of the Bell System to render "the most telephone service, and the best, at the least cost to the public." The achievements of the past year reflect this basic policy.

In common with many others, we have suffered from the unusually adverse business conditions which marked 1930. But in spite of this fact, we carried on a far-reaching program of expansion and service improvement.

More than forty million dollars were spent for new construction in 1930. Of this total approximately thirty-four millions were expended to provide additional local facilities to meet present needs and to anticipate growth, and over three and a half millions for new inter-city cables.

Twenty-one new telephone buildings were completed—and work was begun on four others—to facilitate the transaction of business and the rendering of telephone service.

New methods and new equipment, developed during the year, made possible still further improvements in the quality of the service—in its speed, accuracy, clearness and convenience.

The number of Bell Telephones in Pennsylvania was increased by more than 10,000—a small gain when compared with the 81,000 added in 1929, but worthy of note in view of the unusual conditions with which we were confronted.

As evidence of our determination that, in good times or bad, "the service shall be adequate, dependable and satisfactory to the user," we list the following major activities of 1930:

OUT-OF-TOWN RATES REDUCED

On January 1, 1930, out-of-town rates were again reduced—the fourth reduction in less than four years. It is estimated that this reduction resulted in an annual saving of over a half million dollars to the people of Pennsylvania.

INSTALLATIONS SPEEDED UP

Telephones were installed, on the average, two and a half days after the contract was signed, as compared with the three days in 1929, and in most cases were installed on the day and at the time set by the subscriber.

PLANT TROUBLES REDUCED

New and improved equipment, and improved maintenance methods brought about a 14 per cent reduction in mechanical troubles. Wire and cable troubles were reduced 21 per cent.

DIRECTORY ACCURACY BROUGHT CLOSE TO 100%

Errors in directory listings from all causes were still further reduced and now stand at less than 8 for every 10,000.

SIX "REPEATER STATIONS" ADDED TO OUT-OF-TOWN CIRCUITS

During 1930, vacuum tube repeaters were installed at Frackville, Sunbury, Williamsport, Butler, Kane and on the New Castle-Youngstown cable route. These repeaters are provided to "step up" diminishing voice sounds so that they retain their original volume and clarity during long distance conversations. There are now a total of 25 repeater stations along Pennsylvania's voice highways.

SPEED ON OUT-OF-TOWN CALLS INCREASED

The average time from placing an out-of-town call until conversation starts (or report is given) was reduced from an average of two minutes in 1929 to a minute and three-quarters in 1930. On calls where it was not necessary to hang up, the reduction was from 90 to 60 seconds.

"HANG UPS" REDUCED

New methods and new equipment developed in 1930 made it possible to speed up out-of-town service by eliminating the necessity of "hanging up" on approximately 90 per cent of all calls.

METHOD OF MAKING OUT-OF-TOWN CALLS SIMPLIFIED

The local operator now accepts all Station to Station calls from Philadelphia. This new and easy method of making out-of-town calls has been gradually extended throughout the state.

COMBINED INFORMATION AND TOLL SERVICE

In various smaller offices a new operating method permits the Information Operator to supply the number and put through the call instead of referring it back to another operator.

NEW BUILDINGS COMPLETED

Bradford	Lansdale	Sharpsburg
Bristol	Mountaintop	Shenandoah
Carnegie	North Wales	Sewickley (Addition)
Chester	Perkasie	Souderton
Easton	Philadelphia	Uniontown
Lancaster	Phoenixville	Valley (Turtle Creek)
Lexington	Pittsburgh

Work was begun on four other telephone buildings:

Conshohocken	Philadelphia
Paoli	Pittsburgh

Land was purchased for nine others to be erected later:

The telephone typewriter network of the State Police inaugurated the end of 1929 to aid in the pursuit of criminals, was extended in 1930 to include additional Pennsylvania points and also to provide inter-connection with a similar system in New Jersey.

NEW EQUIPMENT DEVELOPED

Early in the year, we introduced a new type of inter-communicating equipment, suitable for residence and office use. This compact, flexible dial equipment found instant favor.

TIME OF DAY SERVICE INAUGURATED

It is now possible to secure the correct time from any Bell telephone in Pennsylvania. More than 2,600 calls per day since the inauguration of this service last April indicates its widespread popularity.

NEW INTER-CITY CABLES

Nineteen thousand miles of wire, in lead-sheathed, storm-resisting cable have been added to Pennsylvania's network of inter-city lines at a cost of three and a half million dollars. The following are among the major operations completed or begun last year.

The York-Harrisburg Cable—36 miles—completed in April—connects at York with the York-Baltimore cable and at Harrisburg with the new Harrisburg-Sunbury-Williamsport cable.

The Harrisburg-Sunbury Cable—46 miles—70 per cent completed in 1930.

The Sunbury-Williamsport Cable—54 miles—85 per cent completed in 1930—will connect with the Frackville-Sunbury and the Harrisburg-Sunbury cables.

The Harrisburg-Altoona-Ligonier Cable—148 miles—to be completed July, 1931—second cable on this route.

The Charleroi-Brownsville-Uniontown Cable—31 miles—an extension of the present Pittsburgh-Charleroi cable—with branches to New Salem and California, Pa.—completed in March—first section of ultimate cable Pittsburgh-Charlestown, W. Va.

The New Castle-Meadville Cable—A 47 mile link in an ultimate New Castle-Erie cable—branches to Sharon, Greenville, Mercer and New Castle—to be completed early in 1931.

The Easton-Reading Cable—53 miles—a link of the cable across Pennsylvania connecting the Atlantic Sea Board with the West—branch cable will connect with Kutztown, Fleetwood and Topton.

The Two New Philadelphia-New York Cables—Work begun on the "F" and "G" cables to New York.

The Easton-Stroudsburg-Scranton Cable—67 miles—to be completed next June—will provide the shortest cable route from New York to the Anthracite region and the Poconos.

The Latrobe-Blairsville Cable—11 miles—completed in September—to be extended to Greensburg—ties in at Latrobe with Pittsburgh-Harrisburg "A."

The Lansdale-Souderton-Perkasie Cable—20 miles.

The Easton-Raubsville Cable Extension—7 miles.

The coming year will see no let-up in our program of expansion and betterment of the service. A total of $35,000,000 is planned for expenditure during 1931 on new cable, new switchboards, new buildings, new equipment. Confident in the future, we will continue to provide an inter-communication service constantly growing in scope, usefulness and value.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Cold Fails To Halt Hunts

Flying snow and stinging winds fail to daunt the red-jacketed huntsmen. Instead their cry is "On with the hunt." Most of the hunts plan to hold meets well into January, and the Sewickley Hunt will open the new year with a hunt tomorrow.

There will be a hunt breakfast first, and then the hunt will start from Duff City. The meets will be held regularly on Wednesdays and Saturdays during January.

Members of the Pittsburgh Hunt, too, plan post-season hunting. Saturday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock they will meet at the kennels. The meet on Tuesday was postponed because of snow, but there is a tentative agreement to hold a fixture tomorrow.

Society is looking forward to dancing the old year out and the new year in tonight, and to New Year's Day receptions and teas tomorrow, and a few final parties for the buds on Friday.

New Year Fetes

Tonight the Pittsburgh Club will hold its annual New Year's eve ball, and the Longue Vue Country Club will hold a ball tonight, too.

For the school set there'll be two notable entertainments, a dinner the William R. Robinsons will give tonight in their home in honor of their daughter Peggy, to be followed by a dance the T. Tomorrow afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., of Fifth avenue, will give a tea as usual in their home, and the William Christopher Robinsons will entertain with a supper dance in the Allegheny Country Club for their debutante niece, Madelaine Alexander, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander.

BLACK COMBINED WITH BLUE CONTINUES SUCCESSFUL REIGN

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 31.—Black and blue is marked for color success. This combination emerges as a color highlight of the season and women everywhere are enthusiastic over it. There have been some tentative essays in the direction of black with pink or with red or green, but these met only with individual favor. But black combined with aquamarine or turquoise blue seems to please every woman, for it is flattering to both blonde and brunette and the indeterminate type of coloring is also much improved thereby. These reasons are quite sufficient to account for the popularity of black with blue, and so it is small wonder that one sees dresses, coats and hats all lending themselves advantageously to this most refreshing color scheme. It would seem that black and blue clothes will be a hold-over into the spring season that is, sartorially speaking, almost with us.

MARIE-CHRISTIANE IS THE HOUSE responsible for the likeable little hat shown. In the well-known manner of this firm, material mergers are used for many of the nicest models and the one here depicted is of pale green felt and matching green wool jersey laced with strips of felt. These mediums are combined into a turban-like model with the jersey draped rather high across the front. The felt forms the body of the hat and is drawn into a knot at one side.

* * *

THE AFTERNOON FROCK is by Germaine Lecomte, who uses black and blue for this most successful model. The material is heavy black crepe and the cowl collar and flaring sleeves are of turquoise blue georgette. Radiating pin-tucks are used for a dual purpose; they act as a means of fitting the upper skirt to the waistline and also as a decoration. The high-set, square-cut arm hole is worthy of notice as an interesting and new detail.

Allan Hoover, Adams Kin Dance in White House

WASHINGTON, Dec 31.—(AP.)—A descendant of the first occupant of the White House and the son of the present one danced in the east room of the presidential mansion last night.

It was Allan Hoover's New Year party, a thoroughly youthful affair to which the President and Mrs. Hoover invited a couple of hundred guests, sons and daughters of their friends and of government officials. Allan's partner for the first dance was Fanny Homans, great-great-great-granddaughter of President John Adams and niece of Charles Francis Adams, the present secretary of the Navy.

The dance was short, beginning at 10 o'clock and ending with supper at midnight, which is far from the usual hour of suspending gaiety in less formal homes of the capital. At the supper came again a touch of tradition. To Miss Homans was brought a piece of cake on the selfsame plate her distinguished ancestors used. It is now a prized piece of the White House historical collection.

A jazz orchestra furnished the music instead of the military bands which play at White House receptions.

WALTER WINCHELL
On Broadway

(Copyright 1930 by Daily Mirror, Inc.)

"those newspapers exaggerate so. They only fired ten bullets!"

Heheheh

Elsie Morrison says of the Spanish uprising:

"I don't care a continental who takes the town of Valencia —so long as they don't sing it!"

The Retort Comforting

Up at Sing Sing the other day several Broadway show people entertained the prisoners on a holiday program.

"Oh, my gawd!" she ejaculated, "looka.. There's a fly in my soup!"

Bait

It comes from Hollywood, of course, and reveals Arthur Caesar in his favorite role of Bogey-Man. At a recent party, they say, Caesar waited until a certain juvenile drove up. Then, cornering him on the pavement, Arthur said:

"Just for fun—when you come into the room where they will all be sitting, strike up a dramatic pose and yell: 'Ham!'"

"I see," said the victim, "but who's the dirty dig meant for?"

Fact

The only annoying thing about doing a column is that the people who knock you invariably have a good reason to.

Newspaperman Stuff

When Mr. Coolidge first started his syndicated column he found one of the first columns very trying to complete. His agreement with the publishers, you know, is that he write 200 words daily.

After struggling with one column in which he preached that he enjoyed working every day, Cal counted the words which were shy three of 200. He perspired for an hour trying to figure out three extra words that wouldn't break up his continuity. The last line ran ". . . so I say that I believe every man should work every day." Cal went a little crazy thinking up three more.

Finally the three words struck him like lightning.

They were—Except on Sundays!

Wisey

From the late Keith Preston:

"An epigram is a disappointed paragraph."

Merciless Truths

"Observed over a speakeasy bar: "Four-fifths of the perjury in the world is expended on tombstones." . . . "There are more Mormons in New York than in Salt Lake City, but their wives don't know it" . . . "A philosopher is a man who can look at an empty glass and smile," and "Marriage is a great institution—for those who like institutions."

Incidentally

Izzy Elinson says things are not tough with him at all, in spite of the current depression.

"But not with me," he writes. "I'm making plenty of money writing gags that begin 'Times are so bad that——.'"

One Man's Opinion

I've always held that marriage should not bind
A woman's will, nor make her feel less free
To keep as friends the boys she left behind—
That is, except the girl who married me.

—Hari-Kari.

A Form of Criticism

Then there is the clipping submitted by Kalmar and Ruby from a Texas rag which reviewed a small-time vaudeville show.

It said in part:

"Blind and Fox opened at the Orpheum last night. If they are not lynched this morning there will be a matinee this afternoon."

In Other Words

Perhaps it is just as well that we never reached the eighth grade in public school. After we penned a paragraph a few minutes ago, aimed at the lyricist of the song, "If I Could Be With You," in which we chided him for using the line ". . . if I was free to do the things I might," the proofroom and the editorial staff reminded us that the lyricist was not using poor English, although "if I were" is preferable.

"If I was" still grates on our ear-drums, so we wish that some of you would write in and explain why "if I was" is correct. And if youse do write in please send along your diplomers.

In Fewer Words

Nifty

And Peggy Santrey breathlessly says that a good way to cope with the business of keeping the wolf from the door is to let him in so that he can starve himself to death.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

"Competition is the life of trade" runs the old saw, and in radio broadcasting it has truly become the life of the business.

The sustained bombardment between NBC forces at 711 Fifth avenue and CBS troops at 485 Madison in New York has resulted in bringing us the apex in entertainment, years and years before it would have been wrought by a monopoly. Star shells in this miniature warfare have lit up the radio sky with deeds of daring and ingenuity.

They struck a common chord in assembling a Roman gallery of dance bands for tonight. Columbia and WJAS mount the dugout first at 10 o'clock with 15 orchestras playing from here to there—in this case, Buenos Aires to California.

The early bird may get the worm, figure NBC and WCAE, but he won't get the millions of celebrants who are just beginning to whoop it up about 11:30. So they start in there in downtown New York and thread their way across the continent, winding up the jamboree on the Pacific Coast about 3:30 a. m.

That is a mere beginning. Tomorrow we have Premier Benito Mussolini speaking in English from his office in Italy, a Mummers Parade, a prison band using the warden's room at New York Prison for a studio, greetings in 50 different languages, the big Rose Bowl game out west. We skim only the surface. See the schedule for stations and time of these and other big features.

* * *

"BY THE WAY . . ."

Fifty-seven minutes of "good clean fun" from old KUKU is promised by Stationmaster Ambrose J. Weems at 12:03 tonight over WJZ . . . Little Jack Little comes to KDKA next Wednesday at 1:45 in his second network broadcast . . . Irene Beasley takes on a new program next week, her present series with Tp Top Club ending up tomorrow night . . . KDKA has Mary Garden in the America opera, "Camille," this Saturday night at 10 . . . Chimes of Big Ben are on the WABC schedule tonight from 6:58 to 7:20.

THE PAST YEAR

Before we give our calendar pad to the janitor we pause to recount some incidents that have made 1930 the most spectacular in broadcasting.

Charley Horn's Christmas Day hookup of London, Manila, Tokio and Honolulu impressed us as the most worthy engineering feat.

Beckoning of Jascha Heifets to the microphone was a feather in NBC's hat.

History making was the welcome to Rear Admiral Byrd upon his return from the South Pole and the presentation of the National Geographic Medal in Washington at which time Byrd told his experiences for the first time, over the radio.

We recall that American networks broadcast the voices of George Bernard Shaw, Marconi, Premier Hamaguchi, Kingsford-Smith, Premier MacDonald and other world figures at frequent intervals from far away points.

With television and synchronization bound to arrive before 1931 becomes an adult, the accomplishments of 1930 may possibly fade in the light of their marvelous significance. Keep a weather eye on the laboratories.

FOR YOUR COLD

PHYSICIANS SAY

DRINK MORE WATER

ALL physicians agree that drinking water is the first step in the treatment of colds. Seven to ten glasses a day help wash the toxins out of your system—aid your body in throwing off this threatening condition.

Then rub Mentholatum on your chest and throat. Cover your chest with flannel, for although Mentholatum does not stain, the extra warmth increases its action.

Put just a bit in each nostril with the tip of your finger. The pleasant vapors of Mentholatum rise so that you inhale them with every breath. Notice the cool, soothing effect—how easy it makes your breathing.

For 36 years Mentholatum has been a reliable home-remedy. Try this faster, surer way to get relief. Order Mentholatum NOW at your favorite drug store. 30c for handy tube or familiar jar. (60c for the large-sized jar.)

Write for free sample of Mentholatum and booklet "How to Get Rid of Colds." Just send your name and address. The Mentholatum Co., Wichita, Kansas.

The LOUDSPEAKER

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—The old jazz tree will be shaken tonight as it has not been shaken in the republic since it began bearing fruit. Four hours of vo-de-o-do, stretching from Gotham to the Golden Gate and from Boston to Buenos Aires should be enough to satisfy even grandpappy, to say nothing of grandpappy's misty-eyed grand-daughter.

The grand parade of maestros to the microphones includes every beckoner to the dance save one or two who are identified with the snootier hotels. It will furnish a rare opportunity to compare the respective romantic techniques of the leaders as they run "My Baby Just Cares for Me" through the jazz hopper.

* * *

The Buenos Aires program comes early enough to permit most the maestros a chance to hear how a South American band plays native tangos. The lesson should be profitable.

* * *

While jazz agitates the air there is not in all the land one brief bow to the hoedowns of the countryside. The rural population of America will hear jazz or it will hear nothing. It might want to shake a leg that ol' debbil 1930 has gone forever but it must shake it not to "Turkey in the Straw" and "Pop Goes the Weasel" but to the tom-tom beat of Tin Pan Alley.

* * *

The broadcasters are again up to their old tricks. They are again promising the Archbishop of Canterbury to the armchairs. Once a month they schedule him and once a month he sidesteps the microphone. Perhaps he, too, is waiting for a new year.

* * *

Blues, quiescent for a period, are creeping back to the loudspeakers. When it comes to blues-writing no one is in a class with W. C. Handy. We have reached the point where we turn the dial after the first bar of the Toreador's song from "Carmen." Fine, rousing song, the Toreador's, before you have heard it the hundredth time! Radio men watch the ocean liners for Hollywood-bound French and German actresses almost as eagerly as the cameramen. B. A. Rolfe, dance maestro, bears a close resemblance to Herbert Hoover. Will Osborne, jazz jehovah, has thrown all his brass instruments into the junk pile.

* * *

The most expert glee club yet to reach these ears is that which bears the name of Mendelssohn. Screen stars are no longer frightened by the microphones. The old Weber and Fields ditty, "Rosie, You Are My Posie," is used to open and close the radio programs of the comedians. The tune is as fresh today as when it first caught the nation's fancy. Just as one song has frequently put over a musical comedy, so one song frequently puts over a radio program. Until the maestros overdid "Peanut Vendor" the tune was the saving grace of many a broadcast.

LANG REPORTS BIG SAVINGS OF WATER

Campaign to Lessen Waste Effects Substantial Economies, Director Says

Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, reports that substantial results have been accomplished on the North Side in a campaign to save water. Inspections are being made by employes of the Bureau of Water under James H. Kennon.

At the Brushear reservoir, a saving of 29.4 per cent has been made; and at the McNaughter reservoir the percentage is 18.6, with the latter area only half completed. The total saving will run into several million gallons of water daily.

To date, 1,304 properties have been located where water has been wasted and 673 of these cases have been repaired. A large percentage of waste has been found due to defective fixtures. On the South Side, where a water waste survey was made recently, a 20 per cent saving was effected in the coal used in the Mission street pumping station.

APPLE SELLERS' SPONSORS QUIT

Charged with "bootlegging" inferior fruit, Pittsburgh's apple sellers today were selling their wares without sanction of the recently-formed apple committee. The committee was dissolved last night, according to Alexander Murdock, chairman.

Members of the committee declared salesmen procured their fruit from sources other than the distributing station opened in Pike street, where salesmen bought apples at $2 a box and sold them at $2 to $3 profit. Murdoch said:

"A number of men have been selling cooking apples, and we are unwilling to take the blame for distributing them. At the station on Pike street apples were supplied salesmen at reasonable prices, and no company was getting the benefit of the sales."

James M. Clark, public safety director, through whose office permits are granted to sell apples on the streets, today said:

"I have extended the permits for the month of January. I had nothing to do with the source of supply, and I am not concerned as to where the sellers buy the fruit."

Real Estate

Marked advances in city and regional planning work were made throughout the United States during 1930, says a summary of the year's progress by the Commitee on City and Regional Planning of the American Institute of Architects.

During the year 94 cities and counties reported passing zoning ordinances, according to the summary. This brings the total number of cities comprehensively or partially zoned to over 900. The United States Chamber of Commerce finds that New York state is in the lead with 142 cities zoned.

Two automobiles were seized and seven places raided by prohibition agents and constables in the city and county yesterday.

Fifty gallons of alcohol found in an automobile in the rear of the home of Henry Goldman, 24, of 2216 Forbes street, led to his arrest, agents said. Another automobile, containing 15 gallons of moonshine, was seized at West Lacock and Cremo street. The driver fled.

The owner of a 100-gallon still reported confiscated in a dwelling in Calvert avenue, Baldwin Township, was being sought. Besides the still, 65 barrels of mash were destroyed, it was reported.

Sam Phillips, 40; James Phillips, 26, and Eugene Rutherford, 35, were arrested following the seizure of a 50-gallon still in a building at 2620 Bedford avenue, according to the raiders.

Other raids where liquor violations were reported discovered were: A building in Crafton avenue, near Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, Crafton; 22 Oregon avenue, Crafton; 2223 Webster avenue, 6508 Ladson street and 434 Island avenue.

Car Hit Boy, Then His Father, Suit Declares

An automobile first knocked down his son, and then backed up and ran over him, according to Louis McGough, 246 Edith street, who has filed a $55,000 damage suit on behalf of his minor son, George McGough, in Common Pleas Court against L. E. Marini, Jr., of New Kensington. The boy was crossing Strathmore street when the accident occurred last May 28.

CLEAR WOMAN OF CONTEMPT

Isaiah Good, foreman of the grand jury, had petitioned court that she be adjudged in contempt for refusal to answer questions before the grand jury. Subsequently she had answered the questions before the same grand jury, Graham informed Judge Gibson.

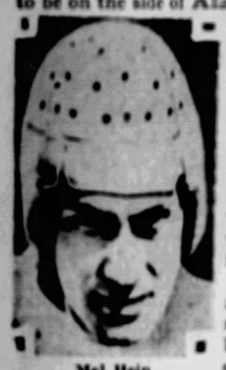
EDGE SEEN FOR 'BAMA IN ROSE GAME

WHATEVER EDGE THERE may be in tomorrow's annual football classic in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena appears to be on the side of Alabama. In a general sense it looks like a pretty even thing on paper and with a lineup including such stars as Mel Hein, the great center, and others, Washington State cannot be said to be without a chance to win. But with everything considered, the dope seems to favor the Southerners, if dope can be classed as being worth anything in a season that has been more notable for upsets than for the number of times the majority of the country's big teams ran true to form.



Mel Hein

Coast elevens have come to be rated as having a big advantage in this annual encounter, but this is not borne out by the records except in so far as Eastern opponents are concerned. The Far Westerners hold a margin of six collegiate victories to four, with three ties on the side, but all except one of those triumphs were scored over Eastern visitors. Only once have the coast gridders beaten a Mid-Western outfit, Ohio State, and they have never defeated a foe from the South. Of the last seven games the coast has won only two, and on both occasions the victims were our own Pitt Panthers.

POSSIBLY CLIMATE HAS aided Southern elevens. They do not experience such a marked change as do Northern teams in going into a Southern California temperature on New Year's Day. Besides, the warm winters of Dixie enable the gridders of that region to keep in better shape than Northerners during December. Outdoor practice on a firm, dry field is possible every day, whereas Northerners must drill indoors or on frozen gridirons.

That kind of practice not only enables the Southerners to maintain playing fitness physically, but it keeps them up to par in their game, particularly in the all-important matter of timing. And as for the effects of the Pasadena climate, it may on this occasion be less of an enervating handicap to the players from the warm South than to their Washington State rivals, who are not apt to be braced up by the change from the cold winds of the Northwest.

BUT EVEN WITHOUT figuring the part that the climate may play, Alabama appears to have the superior machine. The backfield is strong and well balanced, with John Suther, Hurry Cain and Monk Campbell carrying the ball and Ralph McRight playing a sort of unknown soldier part like that of Marty Brill at Notre Dame—rarely toting the leather but clearing the path for his mates by knocking down half a dozen of the enemy.

John Suther

Besides these backs are aided by the all-American tackle, Ralph Sington, one of the greatest linemen of the day, who makes holes through which you could drive a coach and four. On defense, the team has been equally impressive. During the entire season only eight first downs were made through its line.

WASHINGTON STATE does not look as strong now as it did before Notre Dame crushed Southern California. The Cougars' 7-to-6 victory over the Trojans stood out impressively for a time, but after the terrific lacing which the Irish administered to Southern California it lost considerable of its weight. Also, the Cougars were able to beat Villanova only 13 to 0. Babe Hollingberry has a good team, there is no doubt about that. It is a capable and well balanced outfit that surrounds the brilliant Hein, and must be conceded at least a fighting chance to win, but in the main the dope points to a victory for the Crimson Tide.*

TWO EXCEPTIONAL LINEMEN promise to stand out in the coast battle if Hein, at center for Washington State, and Sington at tackle for 'Bama, are in top form. Coach Hollingberry goes so far as to rate Hein the most valuable football player in America. He says if he had his pick of all the all-America stars named this year he would choose Hein, adding that he is not excepting even Frank Carideo, Notre Dame's "perfect quarterback."

Hollingberry does not string along with the theory that a smart quarterback is the most important cog in a football machine. According to the Washington State coach, the center is the chief factor. "Give me a good center, and give me Mel Hein first for my team," he says. "I see that they gave Ben Ticknor, of Harvard, the highest rating for his passing in their all-America team selections. Well, it may interest them to know that Hein hasn't made a single bad pass for me in the three years he has been playing for Washington State."

THE ATTEMPTS OF Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, to give the proposed Schmeling-Sharkey title fight some early ballyhooing by delaying the German's acceptance of the match are becoming tiresome already.

Joe Jacobs

Though he spent a long time in Germany with his fighter, he now holds up the fight again in taking another week, the latest limit fixed by the New York commission, to find out what Schmeling intends to do about it.

JACOBS AND HIS accidental champion have a lot of nerve to hold back on defending a title that went to them as a gift, particularly as they agreed at the time to a return match in which Schmeling would meet Sharkey again. It was with the understanding that the title was given to the German, so that the present stalling of Schmeling and his manager comes in bad grace, even if it is only part of the usual preliminary smoke-up to help the gate. As a matter of fact, it would be only just if Schmeling and Sharkey were forced to fight over again for nothing in order to give the fans what they paid for last summer and did not receive. They will be paying twice to see the same show, with no assurance that the second exhibition will be any more satisfactory than the first.*

IN REPLACING NIBS PRICE as head football coach, the University of California athletic officials appear determined to get a man with Western Conference experience, as at least four present or former mentors in the Big Ten have been reported as being considered for the post. They are Burton Ingwersen, of Iowa; Bob Zuppke, of Illinois; Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and Dr. C. W. Spears, of Oregon, who was at Minnesota for a time.

Hanley is practically eliminated, as it is said California does not desire a coach using the Warner system, which is the style followed by Dick. Zuppke puts himself out of the reckoning by saying he will not think of leaving Illinois, where he has spent 18 years. But both Ingwersen and Spears have been strongly recommended and at present are considered the leading candidates for the vacancy.

Overend to Attend Carideo Banquet

Graduate Manager of Athletics Clarence Overend, of Carnegie Tech, will be master of ceremonies at a banquet to be held in honor of Frank Carideo, Notre Dame's all-America quarterback, in the Castleton Hotel, New Castle, Pa., Saturday. Bob Waddell, of Tech; Jock Sutherland, of Pitt; Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, and Howard Harpster, of Geneva, also will attend. Wes Fesler, Ohio State's all-America end, has been invited.

GRIDDERS SET FOR CONTEST TOMORROW

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—That final touch of preparation which often makes or breaks a gridiron eleven was in store here today for Washington State and Alabama, foes in the Rose Tournament's sixteenth annual intersectional football game tomorrow.

Already trained down to a fine point, both squads went through a brief workout yesterday, their first in the Rose Bowl, scene of the New Year's Day game.

It was the first thoroughly private drill either eleven had experienced, but it is generally understood that both coaches, Wallace Wade, making his final appearance as gridiron general of Alabama, and Orin Hollingberry, of Washington State, stressed their pass plays.

STRONG LINES

Both mentors boast strong lines, through which few touchdowns have been punched this fall. The Crimson Tide earned the name of being a great defensive eleven during the campaign which carried it to a tie for Southern Conference honors. The Cougars won the undisputed Pacific Coast title much in the same style.

The only touchdowns scored on the Tide this year, by Tennessee and Vanderbilt, were made possible on forward passes. The Cougars have been scored on five times, but three or these touchdowns were made by weak opponents, who scarcely had a chance to win. That makes the two teams almost a standoff, so far as the past records go.

A victory tomorrow will be second for either institution in a Rose Tournament game. Alabama, making its third appearance in six years, won its first game in 1926 from Washington, 20 to 19, and tied Stanford, 7 to 7, two years later. The Cougars inaugurated the intersectional classic with a 14-to-0 victory over Brown.

With game time only a day away, neither coach was willing to definitely name a starting lineup.

"I'll not be sure until half a minute before game time," Coach Hollingberry said.

Washington State officials said they expected more than 65,000 persons to witness the contest. The Rose Bowl will seat 85,000. The game will get under way at 2:15 coast time.

ZUP LACKS RESERVES

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Lack of sufficient reserve strength on the line may prove the undoing of Coach Bob Zuppke's Mid-Western eleven in its charity bout with the Southwest All-Stars at Ownby Stadium here tomorrow.

Coach Zuppke expressed that fear while directing his team's last strenuous practice yesterday. A knee injury suffered in scrimmage by Arthur J. Massucci, big University of Detroit tackle has cost the invading eleven the services of one of its best players and the veteran Illinois coach was doubtful of the strength of his replacements.

In order to minimize the handicap, Coach Zuppke sought permission to discard the substitution rule and send men back into the game as often as he wished, but there was doubt that Coach Morley Jennings, of the Southwest would agree to such a departure.

GROVE LEADS ALL-STARS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Lefty Grove, pitching ace of Connie Mack's Athletics, is the star of the 1930 all-stars. Such is the verdict of 228 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, 218 of whom named the southpaw twirler in ballots returned to the Sporting News of St. Louis, in the selection of its mythical club.

The all-star squad includes six players from the American League and four from the National, as follows:

Cochrane, Grove's battery mate, now named as the Sporting News' all-star catcher for the third successive year, ran a close second in popularity with the experts, polling 212 votes. Hack Wilson, Chicago's home run king, was next with 200.

For the first time since the selections were inaugurated six years ago, Rogers Hornsby failed to place. Another feature of the vote was the strong competition against Ruth in right field.

COX STOPS RUTH

HITS COLLEGE 'RACKET'

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(INS.)—Declaring that college football is in danger of becoming known as a "racket," Prof. Charles W. Kennedy, of Princeton, today declared in a ringing address before the convention of the National Collegiate Association the game should be returned to its status in the good old days when teams played only a few games with traditional, geographical rivals and when a coach was "a teacher instead of a ringmaster."

After stressing the so-called evils of excessive football practice and transcontinental jaunts by college squads, Prof. Kennedy advanced the following recommendations to rectify conditions:

1. Reduction in the length of football schedules to not more than five or six games.
2. Scheduling of these games late enough in the season so that training need not start as early as late August or early September.
3. Scheduling of games as far as possible with institutions of similar standing, ideals and educational purposes.
4. Scheduling of games with institutions with which there exists a natural, friendly and often traditional basis of rivalry.
5. Scheduling of these games as far as possible with institutions of similar size and geographical propinquity.
6. Scheduling of these games to be played on home grounds in an atmosphere of friendship and hospitality.
7. Scheduling of all intercollegiate games with the recognition that sports exist for undergraduates and that their desires should receive adequate representation in all athletic councils.
8. Elimination of spring football practice.

Prof. Kennedy also made two recommendations to be applied in the administration of college football. They were:

1. Establishment of an administration of the game that recognizes the authority and prestige of the undergraduate captain, and under him the initiative and independence of undergraduate players.
2. An adjustment of the duties and authority of the coach that will make him a teacher, counsellor and friend, but not a ringmaster.

OFFICIALS TO MEET

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—All members of the Northern West Virginia Approved Basketball Officials' Association were asked yesterday by Charles Sinsel, secretary, to attend a meeting at Fairmont Sunday afternoon to consider interpretation of the rules and membership applications.

Fairmont Coach Makes Novel Suggestion

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Dec. 31.—Paul Dawson, coach of Fairmont High School athletic teams, was asked today what he thought of the idea advanced at the football meetings in New York that coaches do little if any directing of the play during a game and allow the captain to handle the team. He replied:

"Why not use 12 men on each side and allow one of them to walk up and down the sidelines as field general?"

BILLY JACOBS ELIMINATED

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Two stunning upsets featured the fourth day's play in the National junior and boys indoor tennis championships yesterday, as a result of which William Jacobs, defending junior champion of the University of Pittsburgh, and Richard Downing, of New York, the two top seeded favorites, were both elimnated before the semi-finals.

Jacobs had advanced to the quarter-finals through easy straight set wins, but met his conquerer in E. Ramey Donovan, of the Fordham Prep School, New York, and suffered a 6-3, 6-4 defeat.

Downing of Jamaica High School, showed insufficient stamina in a three-set battle and bowed to Robert O. Bacon, Jr., of the New Prep School, Cambridge, Mass. The score was 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

CAPABLANCA, SULTAN TIE

HASTINGS, England, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—J. R. Capablanca, of Cuba; M. Sultan, of India; Miss V. Menchik, of Czechoslovakia, and R. P. Michell, of England, were returned victors in the second round of the Premier Chess tournament yesterday; Capablanca and Sultan Khan were tied for first place, with scores of 2-0 each. Miss Menchik, 1-0, was third.

TILDEN QUITS AS AMATEUR

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden II, veteran Davis Cup star, yesterday announced his retirement from amateur tennis competition to enter the movies.

The tall Philadelphian, for years a storm center in the tennis world, announced his retirement in a letter to Holdomb Ward, chairman of the amateur rule committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Tilden said he had signed a contract to appear in short films, on tennis subjects, for the Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer Corporation. Since the films will be devoted to tennis, Tilden automatically is disqualified from competing under the rules governing amateurs.

The text of Tilden's letter to the U. S. L. T. A. follows:

"Dear Mr. Ward:

"I wish to inform you that I have signed a motion picture contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Film Corporation, the terms of which will violate the amateur rule of the U. S. L. T. A. Therefore, I am announcing my retirement from amateur tennis to take effect immediately.

"Wishing the game of amateur tennis and the United States Lawn Tennis Association all success in the future and thanking you for many courtesies to me.

"Sincerely,

"WILLIAM T. TILDEN II."

Tilden, now 37 years old, generally has been rated as the greatest player the game of tennis has prodouced. He has dominated American tennis for a decade and been a prime factor in America's success in Davis Cup competition.

He captured the American singles championship seven times, first breaking through in 1920 and ruling for six years before Rene Lacoste, of France, broke the spell in 1926. Lacoste repeated in 1927, and Henri Cochet won the title in 1928, but Tilden returned to the heights in 1929 for his seventh singles crown. This year he was beaten by John Hope Doeg, of Santa Monica, in the semi-final round, and Doeg went on to win the championship.

Tilden won the British singles title three times, amazing the sports world by conquering a strong field at Wimbledon this summer for his third British championship.

Ray Alvis Buys King Levinsky's Contract

Ray C. Alvis, who handles boxers in job lots, boasting ownership or interest in 58 gladiators of various weights, color and ability, purchased Levinsky's contract from Al Miller for a consideration reported to be $9,000. Levinsky, advised by Sister Lena and other relatives, had refused to box under Miller's guidance any more after a big family row over the Miller-Levinsky financial arrangements.

Alvis holds a five-year contract with Levinsky, which provides they shall split the former fish peddler's ring earnings on a 50-50 basis. Levinsky will meet Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, in a return match at the Chicago Stadium, January 12 or 14.

GIB WELCH TO WED

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Chancellor yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Myra Chancellor, of Parkersburg, to Gilbert L. (Gibby) Welch, also of this city. The date of the wedding was not announced. Welch was captain of the University of Pittsburgh football team in 1927 and was chosen all-America halfback that year.

ROCKNE LEAVES CLINIC

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Coach Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, will leave for South Bend, Ind., today. Departure had been planned yesterday, but the condition of Mrs. Rockne caused the delay. Mrs. Rockne had a minor operation, but will leave with him. Rockne came here for a physical examination.

PURDUE BOWS, 24-22, IN FAST TILT

By JESS CARVER.

In a whale of a ball game, and when I say whale, I don't mean minnow, Pitt put the skids to old Purdue's hope of cruising about the basketball courts of the nation in undefeated fashion this year by upsetting the Boilermakers, 24 to 22, in the Stadium Pavilion last night.

"What do you mean, whale?" asks the cynic, who gets a far-away look in his eyes whenever basketball is mentioned.

Whale is the word, no other. Up the floor and down the floor, in the basket, and out, passing in heart-rending fashion time and again on the rim and then rolling off, the ball traveled as the Blue and Gold and the White and Black fought for supremacy. Pitt overcame an early lead of the Big Tenners and fought off a determined rally in the closing minutes to pack away the most important triumph of the campaign to date.

LAWRY BRILLIANT

Young Timmy Lawry, a little sophomore forward, who really wasn't supposed to make the varsity, was the chap about whose brow the laurel wreath of the contest was draped. Timmy courageously stepped up to the free toss line on no fewer than six occasions, and each time made good. He also took time enough from his duties of messing up Purdue's offensive to flip in a field goal, to be the high scorer of the battle, with eight big and important points.

Purdue, boasting a record of having won or shared the last five Western Conference titles and of having finished fourth or better each year for the past 11, came here as reigning champion of the Big Ten. A charley horse, and a nasty one, rendered the highly-touted Johnny Wooden, all-America guard, hors de combat for all but four minutes of the fracas, but when Dribbling Johnny did get into the tussle, he knew what to do. Had he been in there all the way, and with a good left leg, the story might have been different.

Their speed and accurate passing matched play for play and situation for situation by the Boilermakers, who sported a great advantage in height and weight, Pitt had to fall back on more canny defensive play and on the superiority of Buss Albright at center over Charley Stewart, of the Black and White.

CANNY ON DEFENSE

It was in this astute defense that Lawry figured. Timmy intercepted more than one zipping Purdue pass that might have been converted into a field goal, and he handled the ball himself, when his team was on the attack, like a veritable Hyatt.

Purdue hopped off to a 4-0 lead, but this was whittled down to 4-2 when Don Smith tallied and then Buss Albright put the locals into the van when a long shot made it 5-4. After that, no matter how Purdue pressed and carried the fight to the Panthers, Doctor Carlson's young men remained out in front.

At half time, the count stood 12-6 in Pitt's favor. This margin was never increased, and finally, it was cut to 20-18. Purdue appeared to be "hot," for Eddy, a crackerjack shot from the side court, and big, rangy Stewart, were popping away in a manner far from reassuring from a Pitt standpoint.

There were about eight minutes to go, too, with this 20-18 count. That is a long time, especially with one team tiring fast and the other apparently gaining strength. To make matters worse for Pitt, Don Smith, who'd played a pip of a game, was given the gate on four personal fouls. Doc Carlson's jaw dropped nine feet when Smitty went to the bench.

KOWALLIS TALLIES

Taking a pass from Arture, Lawry cut under the hoop and attempted a shot. He was fouled and Referee Lane gave him two shots from the foul line. He'd already made four in a row, and you could have wagered the rent that he'd do no better than get one out of the two and not found a taker. But Timmy, cool as a cucumber, very neatly tossed in a pair of points that were as important to Pitt's success in the game as the jack is to a royal flush.

Leading now by four points, the situation became less acute but not for long. On a pass from his running mate, Kellar, this chap Eddy hooked one in and the Boilermakers were close again. And then, in came Wooden.

Wooden's entrance into the milling was not immediately auspicious, for Stevie Kowallis zipped one through from out at the foul line. Three minutes to go, now, with a four-point lead.

What does this fellow Wooden do but get possession of the ball, dribble very expertly down the floor and let one go? He missed, but had the ball within the next couple seconds when he intercepted a Pitt pass. This time he didn't miscue, letting one go one-handed that swished through.

COX, JACKET GOALIE, OUT WITH BROKEN HAND

LOCAL ICEMEN MEET BUFFALO TOMORROW

By CARL W. SHATTO

Last Saturday Duke McCurry and Gordy Fraser returned to the lineup after being out for three weeks with broken ribs and a broken hand, respectively, and today Alloe Cox, the locals' brilliant goalie, is on the shelf with a broken right hand.

Cox will be out of action for about two weeks. He sustained his injury in stopping one of the Syracuse Stars' hot shots Saturday, but the fact that a bone in his hand was broken was not discovered until late yesterday, when an X-Ray picture was taken.

FISHER RECALLED

The Jackets are to battle the Buffalo Bisons, International League pace-setters, at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night, and if Roy D. Schooley did not have a hockey "farm" the injury to Cox would be a staggering blow to the local club. But Schooley does have a farm—the Niagara Falls Club of the Canadian Pro League—and all he has to do is recall Goalie Bud Fisher from the Falls team.

Fisher started the season in the Pittsburgh nets. Later he was loaned to Syracuse, and his fine work gave the Stars their only winning streak of the season. He gave an impressive exhibition against the Jackets here a few weeks ago, and officials of the local club are confident that he will be able to hold the league leaders at bay in the holiday fight here tomorrow night.

BISON DEFENSE STRONG

Bill Taugher, Buffalo goalie, has allowed only 22 enemy goals in 18 games—a remarkable record—and in no battle against the Bisons have foremen been able to register more than three tallies. Taugher gets plenty of assistance from Lederman and Murray, at the defense points, but Fisher, too, will be well protected, for Fraser is back in harness and Smith and Reise are available for relief duty.

If the local backfield measures up to expectations, it is very likely that the league-leaders will be turned back, for the local forwards have not failed to bag one or more goals in each of their last 15 games.

McCurry's return to action and the "finding" of Ouellette have served to give the local front lines a stronger punch than ever before. With three well-balanced fighting forward walls available, President-Manager Roy D. Schooley and Coach Charles Reid have decided that they can best aid the local defense by maintaining a sustained attack, and it will not be surprising if Goalie Taugher's record of no-more-than-three-enemy-goals goes by the boards tomorrow.

SUSTAINED ATTACK

In beating Syracuse last Saturday the Jackets' play in every period resembled that of a team that is trailing by a goal when the final goal is only a minute away. This system of attack, which won the approval and applause of some 5,000 fans, is to be continued until such time as injuries weaken the local ice machine. Frock Lowrey, former Pirate, is to make his debut at wing on one of the spare front lines. The Jackets bowed in defeat three times in three previous meetings with the Bisons, but they have not accepted the short end of the count in their last six games at home, and it is the latter record that they are eager to extend. The pace-setters have been beaten three times in their last seven starts, so the shock of another setback won't exactly kill 'em.

The Jackets are fortunate in drawing the league leaders as holiday foemen, and Garden attaches are being groomed to handle a capacity crowd. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		Buffalo.
Fisher	G	Taugher
Fraser	L. D.	Lederman
Berlett	R. D.	Murray
Ouellette	C	Huard
Proudlock	L. W.	Bogardis
Gregg	R. W.	Godin

Spares—Pittsburgh: Fields, McCurry, Halliday, McIntyre, McGuire, White, Reise, Smith and Lowrey; Buffalo, Martin, Gross, Voss, Cahill, Jackson.

HALL REPORTS RULES STAND

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—In his annual report to the National Collegiate Athletic Association yesterday, E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, indicated that only minor changes will be made in the college grid laws for a period of at least one year. Hall summed up the situation as follows:

"The rules should be standardized substantially as they are, and future changes should be restricted to those which make for greater safety to the players, better sportsmanship or further improvement in the text, and to changes that seem clearly to be necessary to maintain the balance and the integrity of the game substantially as it stands today."

GIANTS RELEASE REESE

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(A.P.)—The New York Giants have announced the acquisition of Rogers Shepherd, star right-hander of the Memphis club of the Southern Association. They also have announced the release of Andy Reese, utility infielder and outfielder, to Oakland, of the Pacific Coast League, in exchange for the deal by which New York gets Johnny Verges, hard-hitting third baseman.

DE VOS, SUSKEY DRAW

for a climb in the 1931 baseball season. The Hubites lost many games in 1930 because they did not have an iron pitcher who could go to the slab in a pinch and stop the enemy. Moore is expected to fill that role.

Wilcy's hurling arm, a kink in which sent him out of the majors, is said to be sound again. With St. Paul this year he developed a good curve, regained the baffling sinker he had before his arm went wrong, and became so effective that he won 22 games, pitching more innings than any other hurler in the circuit.

Wilcy Moore

RED SOX BOSSES believe that in Moore, whom they obtained from St. Paul by the draft route, they picked up the baseball bargain of the year. "So great a come-back did Wilcy stage that half a dozen big league clubs went after him again," says President Bob Quinn. "Brooklyn offered money and players. The Cubs even in midseason tried to purchase him for $25,000. But Bob Connery of the St. Paul club, a former Yankee scout, was fighting for position in the American Association race and refused to sell his veteran twirler. As the draft season drew near, Connery realized that several of his players were subject to draft, and as only one could be taken from him by that process he decided not to sell any of his men but to take a chance on the drawing. Moore was the man that the draft selected, and the Red Sox, having finished last in the pennant race, were given the preference. So we got a great pitcher at a bargain price, and I am confident that he will supply just the additional strength needed to make our slab staff one of the best in the country."

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Unless the Duquesne Lafayettes and St. John's Lyceum passers take a brace during the second half of the season, two of last year's basketball champions are certain to be displaced. The Lafayettes won the championship in the County League last winter, while St. John's captured the laurels in the Catholic Lyceum loop.

Both teams got off to a ragged start in their respective leagues this winter and as a result they are outside looking in for the first time in years. The Lafayettes have suffered three defeats in the County League race and are trailing Fintex by a big margin, while St. John's is far behind St. Wendelin's in the race for the Dr. Beinhauer cup.

If the Lafayettes are displaced in the County League, it will mark the first time since the league was organized five years ago that the Scarlet Hurricane has not carried off the championship. Ed Minnick's team was the winner for four years in a row.

The Duquesne Lafayettes set down the Charleroi Merchants by a spectacular 31-30 count, and Fintex beat the J. J. Mieles, 32-27, in the County League, and Community House tripped the Penn Five, 42-35, and the Knickers lost to the W. U. Hoyles 25-24, in the West Penn League, in last night's leading league contests.

Wooden caused every Pitt heart, bobbing about in every Pitt mouth, to be swallowed when he tried one from the side. The ball was in, but Johnny had too much English aboard, and it spun out.

Purdue banged away from well out on the floor in an effort to catch the flying Panthers. The Westerners were sharpshooters, all right, but they couldn't make 'em all and Pitt was good for enough close ones to establish superiority.

Pitt—24.		Purdue—22.
Cohen	F	(C) Kellar
Lawry	F	Eddy
Albright	C	Stewart
Arture (C)	G	Parmenter
Smith	G	Kurts
Pitt	12	12—24
Purdue	6	16—22

Substitutes—Pitt, Kowallis; Purdue, Wooden.

Fouls—Pitt, Lawry 6 out of 6, Arture 1 out of 4, Smith 2 out of 3, Kowallis 1 out of 1; Purdue, Kellar 1 out of 1, Eddy 1 out of 3, Stewart 1 out of 2, Parmenter none out of 1, Porter 1 out of 1.

Teams fouls—Pitt 10 out of 14, Purdue 4 out of 8.

PITT FRESHIES COP

Erie Junior Branch was outclassed by the Pitt Freshmen, 21-7, in the preliminary contest. The Panther Cubs gained a big lead in the first quarter and held it. The lineup:

Pitt Frosh—21.		Erie—7.
Beck	F	Davis
Bogda	F	Brown
Harapas	C	Forsberg
Ochsenhirt	G	Gambatese
Hughes	G	Garloch

Substitutions—Pitt, Katz for Beck, Hunt for Hughes; Erie Center; Cohen for Davis, Burgoon for Garloch. Field goals—Pitt; Beck 2, Bogda 3, Ochsenhirt, Hughes 2; Erie Center, Masciharica, Forsberg 2, Poules—Pitt; 5 out of 9; Erie Center 1 out of 7. Referee—H. J. Lewis. Time of quarters—10 minutes.

The Tipoff

St. Mary's College, of Michigan, will send its basketball team here Saturday night to afford Duquesne's Dukes their second college test of the season. The Dukes meet Lehigh here Thursday evening, while Pitt is taking on Indiana in the Stadium.

The very capable Frank Lane, of Cincinnati, handled last night's Pitt-Purdue game in A-1 style. I did not hear one squawk regarding his work, which comes close to being a record. He is as good an arbiter as tools a whistle. And a swellman feller, too.

Jimmy Hughes, head master at Bellefonte Academy, the famous Jimmy himself, was a spectator, and will visit in our midst for the next two or three days.

Jess Brown, Pitt's famous left-footed punter of not so many years back; Bob Irwin, former Panther halfback and second baseman, now Dr. Irwin, if you please; Jack Harding, football coach at St. Thomas and quarterback on the Panther eleven that played first in the Stadium; Cy Comfort, a former Carnegie Tech tackle, and Capt. Louis Williams, of the Trinity Cathedral Royals team, attended the Stadium tussle.

I have been tipped off that Westminster and Duquesne may not clash in basketball this year, despite the fact the two schools are supposed to be scheduled. The dirt is that Westminster carded the Dukes without the game being ratified by the U. P. athletic council, and that it won't be.

Tech's Tartans hop out of town tomorrow night for Buffalo, where they open a two-game road trip by piejing Buffalo Friday. Then they swing down to Cleveland to meet Western Reserve Saturday.

ROSES GAME ON AIR

The Tournament of Roses football game between the unbeaten Cougars, of Washington State College, and Alabama's unconquered Crimson Tide will be broadcast, starting at 4:45 p. m. tomorrow, over WCAE. The clash will be described by Bill Munday, assisted by C. L. Lantry, coast announcer.

Two games have been added to tomorrow's soccer card. At Gallatin Peckovitch will throw his Fintex Shannon aggregation against Gallatin in a benefit game for Frank Benick. The recovery of the Gallatin star has been painfully slow, his broken leg sustained at Detroit, in a National amateur cup game, has not mended. It is hoped a large crowd turns out for the game. Fintex and Gallatin are good teams, and a great game should be staged.

At Coverdale, Mollenauer will meet the local club in a replay game. O'Conner will referee a hard fought battle it is anticipated.

REPLAYS CARDED

Two replay games in the third round of the West Penn cup series will appeal to city fans. At Westinghouse High School stadium, Clan Douglas takes up the fight with the Crafton Heights club, starting at 2 o'clock. The other game finds Pittsburgh Rovers entertaining Bridgeville at Leslie Park. This game will commence at 3 o'clock. The victors enter the semi-final round competition.

Manager Clarence Kunkle, of the Cecil team, resents the statement in this column that referees are finding it tough in Cecil this season. Kunkle apparently knows who hit Referee Simpson when he was walking from the field after the Morgan game. The man accused by Kunkle, who is willing to produce his evidence for the Referees' Association, is a former soccer player, and related to a member of the Morgan team. That statement appears to be putting Morgan on the spot. Kunkle always has been a fair-minded player, and should be a good manager. The writer never saw trouble in any games in the old days at Cecil, and Kunkle's statement that followers of the visiting clubs are causing trouble warrants investigation.

COMMITTEE CONFAB

The coming of the national amateur cup committee to Pittsburgh Saturday night finds local soccer fans bemoaning the absence of Johnny McEwan, former member of the committee, and a Clevelander who has worked hard to put this particular committee and the tourney on America's soccer map. President Patterson made a big mistake when he dropped McEwan from the committee. He was a fighter and had the happy faculty of getting publicity for the sport. There is not a man in soccer's cabinet who can compete with McEwan in getting publicity.

BLUFFITES TOP E. PITTSBURGH

East Pittsburgh High School's passers met defeat at the hands of Duquesne University's freshman, 38 to 20, on their own court last night in a fast contest in which Zerrila, Friedman and Moore starred.

Two City League school quints met defeat last night in out-of-town battles. New Castle High took over Westinghouse's combination by an 18-14 tally, while Oliver High bowed to Ambridge, 26-16.

N. Y. MAY LOSE HEAVY GO

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The New York State Athletic Commission seems to have paved the way for the staging of a heavyweight championship fight in Chicago. Whether or not that proves to be the case depends upon Max Schmeling, the titleholder, and his manager, Joe Jacobs.

Taking the bull by the horns, the commission yesterday ordered Schmeling, through Jacobs, to agree within seven days to defend his title against Jack Sharkey here in June or else face forfeiture of the championship in this state.

The next move is strictly up to the Teuton slugger and his manager. They may decide to ignore the commission edict and accept, instead, an offer of $500,000 for a championship match at Chicago with W. L. (Young) Stribling in the challenging role. More than a few boxing critics believe Stribling has a better right to a crack at the title than Sharkey.

The match was approved by the New York Boxing Commission yesterday. The board also approved the January 9 card featuring a bout between Len Harvey, British middleweight, and Vince Dundee, of Baltimore. Dave Shade, leading middleweight contender, who lost to Harvey in England recently, will meet Cowboy Joe Anderson, of Covington, Ky., in the semi-final. Shade was reinstated by the board.

STRIB TO BOX CARNERA

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Frank J. Bruen, manager-director of the Miami Jockey Club and former vice president and general manager of Madison Square Garden, announced today he planned a third "Battle of the Palms" here this winter, with Young Stribling and Primo Carnera as principals.

Bruen said he expected to confer here today or tomorrow with Pa Stribling, father-manager of the Macon (Ga.) heavyweight.

MOTOR SQUARE SHOW TO BE AT NIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The annual New Year's boxing show in Motor Square Garden tomorrow will be held at night instead of in the afternoon as at first planned. A change in program was announced last night by the management, which felt that many of its patrons would not be able to get around in time for a matinee after staying up all night to welcome in the year 1931. As matters stand now, the first bout will go on at 8:30 and the boxers will weigh in at 3 o'clock in the afternoon instead of at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Jackie Rodgers, local Negro featherweight, boxes Johnny Datto, Filipino, of Cleveland, in the 10-round main bout. Datto arrived in town this morning and was slated for a workout in the Garden gym this afternoon.

The bout will mark the third New Year's Day in succession Rodgers has appeared as a main-bouter in the Garden ring and also the culmination of a year's efforts to bring the pair together. They were matched twice at the Meyers Bowl during the past summer, but the first time Rodgers was injured a week before they were due to clash and the second time Datto became ill less than 48 hours before meeting time. Later they almost came together at Hickey Park, Millvale. In order to make the match for tomorrow, the Garden had to buy Rodgers' release from a prior contract to appear at the Moose Temple Friday night.

Johnny Datto.

DATTO JINXED HERE

Datto, while he ranks high among the 126-pounders of the land because of his sock, never has shown to good advantage in bouts here and hopes to break the jinx against Rodgers. Quite a while back, he boxed Andy Martin, the Boston phantom, in the Garden ring, and knocked Andy toppling back into his own corner with his first punch, a devastating overhand right swing, but the cagy Martin got out of the jam and set such a fast pace thereafter that he made Datto look foolish trying to get a punch in edgewise. Last summer, Datto knocked down Joey Thomas a number of times in the opening round of a bout at Hickey Park, but then permitted Thomas to come from behind and handily outbox him to win the decision. He claimed he injured one of his hands so badly in the early rounds that he was in severe pain over the remainder of the route.

Rodgers recently emerged from a layoff due to an injured eye that required an operation to knock out Soldier Dombrowski, of Detroit, in three rounds at the Moose Temple.

GOOD PRELIM CARD

A good preliminary card has been arranged by Matchmaker Jules Beck. He has Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, in a return bout with Harold Scarney, of Youngstown, for the six-round semi-final; Jack Tracey, of the North Side, and Nick Polis, of Aliquippa, in the second bout, and Jimmy Riley, of McKeesport, and Steve Senich, of Homestead, in the opener. Another large crowd, such as that which attended the Vince Dundee-Buck McTiernan bout on Christmas afternoon, is indicated.

Between Rounds

Promoter Apples Meyers is all set for his weekly show in the Moose Temple, downtown, Friday night, now that he has lined up Billy Bulley, the two-fisted fighting son of Mt. Clemens, Mich., to take the place of Jimmy Kelly, of the North Side and Dayton, O., against Young Rudy, of Charleroi, in the 10-round main bout. Kelly was forced to cancel because he severely gashed his left thumb with a razor while shaving. Bulley, who recently made his local debut with a fine winning fight against Larry Kaufman at the Garden, jumped at the chance to grab off a main event, even as an eleventh-hour substitute, for he believes it is his big opportunity to show the local fans he is worthy of such a spot on the cards.

Walter Ketchel, Joe Rigby's middleweight, is anxious to get a chance to redeem himself for his recent poor fight against Sunny Jim McVey at the Garden. Ketchel was far off form that night and never got started. That he can do much better is evident from the form he displayed around here last winter.

A Tony Herrera-Eddie Brannon bout is set for the windup at the Moose Temple Friday night of next week, when the prices will be raised to $1, $2 and $3 in keeping with the caliber of the main event. A tiff between Ray Alvis, Herrera's manager, and the Garden officials enabled Promoter Apples Meyers to land this match.

Joey Thomas, of Chicago, sends on a challenge, through his manager, Jack O'Keefe, for a bout with the winner of the Rodgers-Datto battle. Midget Mike O'Dowd also wants to get the winner.

The proposed Emmett Rocco-Billy Jones bout for the Garden next Monday night has fallen through and Matchmaker Jules Beck has wires out for another good attraction. He plans to go East following the show of January 12, when the Garden will be closed to boxing for a week or two, and dig up some star talent for bouts during the remainder of the season.

Billy Holt and Billy Bulley are virtually matched for a bout on the Garden's card January 12.

Tiger Joe West is paired with K. O. Kelly at Franklin, Pa., tomorrow afternoon, with Larry Kaufman boxing Larry Madge in the semi-final. A benefit card of amateur bouts is billed in the Greensburg Coliseum in the evening.

Sport Vignettes

It's a whole year between today and tomorrow .... But you don't have a whole year in which to make that good resolution .... A resolve in time saves nine would be a good slogan but it doesn't rhyme .... In case Jackie Rodgers scores one of his usual knockouts at the Garden tomorrow, don't, if you have any sense of the fitness of things, get up and yell: "Datto boy, Jackie!"

George Engle

George Engle, in town for a few days, opines that Frank Klaus, of Braddock, whom he piloted to the world middleweight title, was the best fighter ever turned out by Pittsburgh .... And he managed the late Harry Greb, too, and Harry held the same title, as well as the American light-heavyweight crown .... Klaus, incidentally, went to Europe to win his laurels .... After the death of Stanley Ketchel, the title was vacant and Klaus whipped Jack Dillon in a 20-rounder at Colma, Cal., to become recognized as the American champion, and then went to Paris to win on a knockout over Georges Carpentier, the European champion, to become an international and world champion. Klaus, according to Engle, never showed at his best before a home crowd, because he was a great man over a long route and short-distance bouts were the rule here at the time.

Speaking of that Carpentier fight, Engle says Klaus really knocked out the Frenchman three times and yet came close to being disqualified when Carp claimed a foul on the final kayo with only one more round to go .... The first time Georges was saved was in the sixth round, the second time in the fourteenth and then came the finish from a body blow in the nineteenth .... "Neither one of us could speak French," Engle said, "and an American who was a stranger to us saved the situation when he conveyed our violent protests to the referee."

In those days, the middleweight limit was 158 pounds ringside and not 160 pounds seven or eight hours before, as it is now. For the Dillon fight, Klaus weighed 154 pounds and Dillon 157½ as they stepped into the ring. Jim Coffroth was the promoter and Jack Welsh the referee....W. W. Naughton, the greatest boxing writer they ever had on the coast, wrote that the bout was the hardest fought ever staged out there....The referee was going to disqualify Dillon for butting as early as the sixth round, when the going was tough.

It is not generally remembered, but Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, head of Columbia University, who now has the colleges all stirred up with his athletics endowment plan, whereby sports would be given back to the students with the over-emphasis and gate receipts deleted, is the same gent who, 25 years ago, abolished football at Columbia because it was too rough and paved the way for a general reformation of the sport. The then President, Theodore Roosevelt, took a hand and helped to save the game for posterity by calling a conference which resulted in a modification of the rules and opening up of play to make it safe for the lives and limbs of the noble athletes....Out of that conference developed the forward pass and the change that gave teams four downs in which to make 10 yards instead of three in which to gain five for a first down. Immediately the old push and pull game was scrapped and we had the nucleus of football as it is played today.—HARRY KECK.

50 VACANCIES CREATED BY NEW LAW

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 31.—(AP.)—All coaches and assistant coaches employed by the 559 high schools affiliated with the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association after September, 1931, must be regularly certified teachers, "employed in a full-time teaching capacity by the school district in which they are employed."

By an official vote of 164 to 128 the association at its annual meeting here today reaffirmed the stand taken last year when the rule was adopted by a vote of 221 to 73. The vote was on an amendment sponsored by District No. 1 to permit non-teacher coaches employed during the 1929-30 season to retain their positions.

With the failure of the amendment—which was the only one of a group of 15 which was defeated—vacancies will be created in the coaching berths of from 25 to 50 high schools, most of them located in the eastern half of the state. Foremost among those affected is Pat Reilly, whose 19-year record with Easton High School was one of the main causes for the action of the District No. 1 board of control in forcing a second vote on the coaches' rule.

The member schools of District No. 8, the newly-created Pittsburgh City group, did not vote as a new unit. These schools, however, cast their ballots with District No. 7, the group from which they have been segregated by the rearrangement of the P. I. A. A. districts.

The other 14 amendments voted on by the Association were approved by overwhelming majorities.

W. P. I. A. L. UNAFFECTED

The effect of the stand taken by the P. I. A. A. in barring all high school coaches and assistant coaches not regularly certified and employed in a full-time teaching capacity will not affect teams in the W. P. I. A. L., to any noticeable degree.

Commenting on the action of the P. I. A. A., J. Foster Gehrett, secretary of the W. P. I. A. L., said the league had broken away from using non-teaching coaches some time ago, and that, with the possible exception of one or two schools in outlying districts, all W. P. I. A. L. coaches are full-time and accredited instructors and members of their school faculties.

Grid Star Changes Name, Goes Trojan

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—The second case of an aspiring football player entering the University of Southern California under an assumed name in an effort to make the Trojan team has been revealed.

Jeff Clay, an ineligible this season, was identified yesterday by members of the Alabama team now preparing in Pasadena for a New Year's Day game with Washington State, as Davis Brasfield, a former 'Bama player.

Prof. H. C. Willett, Trojan athletic representative, said Clay had withdrawn December 17 after a check of his entrance application and, in doing so, had escaped expulsion.

Clay or Brasfield had attracted attention by his passing. He played with the Spartans, a group of ineligibles.

Billions of Smokes

About 16,000,000,000 cigarets were smoked in France in 1929, an average of about 400 for each man, woman and child. Cigars consumed reached a figure of 329,000,000.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Has He a Claim on You If You're Not Engaged?

Have you and the Boy Friend an "understanding"—

Not a Regular Engagement, but just an Understanding that some day you'll amble up the aisle together?

Chances are that you have, if you're a couple of modern youngsters. And the chances also are that you're having plenty of rows about it, and can join enthusiastically in Janice's Theme Song.

"Just what does any understanding mean, anyway?" moans Janice. "Does it mean you have to wrap yourself in mothballs. . . Never look at anyone else . . . Just sit around home waiting—and waiting—"

Considered Engaged

But read it for yourself! Then you pick the answer:

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Here is a problem that a certain young man and I have almost come to blows over. And since neither of us seem able to convince the other, we're coming to Tell It to Sally to see what you—and the Gang—think about it.

"Ted is 26 and I am 21. We have been going together for about a year and have finally reached that modern stage of having an 'understanding.' I have no ring yet and no engagement has been announced, but we see each other just about every moment we're free to, and all our most intimate friends have put us down as hard and fast engaged. We go everywhere together, and have a wonderful companionship and I believe that when the time comes I shall want to settle down with him. But—'the time' hasn't come yet, and probably won't for quite a while. We haven't any money to marry on.

"Not being a Love-Sick Susy in appearance and making contacts with men almost daily in business, I naturally make many good friends and get many invitations to go out with them. Then, too, there are all my boy friends that I went around with before going with Ted. I can truthfully say that every young man I ever went out with is still my friend. We always enjoy seeing each other, and there is always that fine feeling of meeting a long-lost friend. So they naturally look me up when we do meet, and ask me out.

Many Invitations

What am I supposed to do when this happens? Sit back and say, "No, no! I'm Ted's property. No, we're not engaged, but he has a mortgage on me."

"That seems to be what he thinks I should do. And truly, I'm at a loss. About twice out of every five times I accept and go, not because I think any the less of Ted, but because I get tired of making a simpleton of myself in the eyes of my friends, who think I haven't got good sense, retiring into the background like that without anything definite between Ted and me. When I do this the fun begins. Ted points himself out as the Perfect Specimen, who has never asked another girl out but me in the last year and a half.

"However, it seems to me there's a difference. I'm on the defensive all the time. He would have to go out of his way to ask 'em, and I get invitations wished on me. If I were in his place I wouldn't take the initiative. But I constantly have invitations coming at me, and, under the circumstances, they're not easy to refuse. And often there is some good friend whom I don't enjoy being with as much as I enjoy being with Ted, but whom I don't want to hurt either.

"Am I being selfish? Am I fickle? It seems to Ted that I am. He really tries to understand my point of view, being really fairminded. But he can't seem to do it. Of course, it's mostly jealousy on his part. He claims that I'm not all I should be, telling him I'll marry him when the time comes, and then daring to go out with someone else.

Wants Advice

Do you think he's right? Should I wrap myself up in moth balls, even though our plans are so indefinite? It is true that he is working hard to make them come true, and I do love him, and the moments we spend together planning are the sweetest moments of my life, but should I turn down all the others, things being the way they are? Please help me, won't you? "JANICE."

Well, how about it? Should she?

Has a man a right to demand that a girl go with no one but him, so long as their engagement is not published to the world?

If he does, isn't he putting her in a peculiar, not to say embarrassing position, with her friends? Has he a right to do that?

Personally, I don't think he has—and I think that Janice is perfectly right in not walling herself away from all her friends so long as the future is so indefinite. It's plain that she's not chiseling on him. She's not going for whoopee parties or necking marathons. She's only keeping herself in touch with the friends that she knows. That's my slant on the argument.

What's yours, Pal?

Were you ever in the fix Janice is in? Were you ever another Ted? If you were, how'd you settle it?

The King Is Dead—Long Live the King! -:-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Christmas is the giving time. Not the day when the extremely young New Year arrives are gifts in order with us. In Thessaly the poorest peasant gives a gift, "for luck." There are other places in the world where gifts are exchanged, others where debts are religiously paid up (as in China). But here? Here we ASK, not give. Not of each other, but of the new King. We ask greedily—voraciously—for Happiness, Health and Wealth, the greatest treasures in the world. And the King comes without a visible rag to his back, let alone a treasure trove! Naked, eager, smiling, pleased with the rattle of bells as any other baby is, and carrying a toy hour glass with red sand in it. But somewhere about him, magically, he carries the portent of coveted things—great gifts we hope! We are all "gimmies" on New Year's birthday. The already rich hand, loaded down with plenty, the orchid and diamond hand, is held out for a present, for more; just as the poor little mother's hand, a stranger to many coins, the hand of the patched sleeve, is held out for SOME—just some.

We flock like hungry courtiers—expectant, dressed in our best for the young spark, while the bells ring out, hung from the very stars!

The diamond and orchid hand can get along without our good wishes—but we hope with all our heart that the jewel-less hand gets a Happy New Year all the year 'round!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

To Live Wisely—The Resolution for 1931

What does the New Year Day mean to you?

DR COPELAND

It is the ambition, the imagination, the foresight of man that makes him different from the lower animals. He can plan, and, having planned, can make his dream come true.

It is natural for one to translate life into terms of health. I do this because long experience has taught me that, in comparison, nothing else counts.

One of the comforting facts of today is that the horrid concoctions, medicines and local applications of the other days have been thrown into the rubbish heap. They have been discarded by all thinking persons. They did very well in the ignorant past, but in 1931 we are more enlightened.

Right living is known now to be more important than all the prescriptions that can be written. Disease and death are defeated by preserving the body, rather than by "curing" it, or repairing it.

There will never come a time when the family physician, and the specialists, too, will not be needed. But more and more, their task will be to keep us well, not to get us well. By their timely advice we shall be turned away from practices that result in harm. Early attention will help them to help us. They are consultants whose services should not be neglected. In this capacity they are really as essential for mankind as they were thought to be when vile compounds and massive dosing were popular.

We should thank Almighty God that we live in 1931, not 1831, 1731, or any other '31. This is a wonderful age. It has given us scientific knowledge of remedial agents, marvelous instruments of precision, undreamed of manual skill, and mechanical and electrical devices, which mean everything to our physical welfare. It has set our minds at rest, clearing them of superstitions, traditions and silly beliefs.

On the health side of life there never was another time when a year could be faced with greater confidence. Progress is being made in the control of cancer, tuberculosis, Bright's disease, the ailments of heart and blood vessels, and, indeed, in almost every human ailment. Infancy and old age are being guarded against disease. In every age group increasing knowledge is lessening human suffering.

"Every prospect pleases and only man is vile," sang the Bishop of Calcutta. The year 1931 is part of a period where man is widening his knowledge, living more sensibly, and no longer does he deserve to be reviled.

Let us do our full part this year to live up to the new health knowledge. Good health is largely our individual problem and when it is so considered it will be kept by everybody. Let us face 1931 with a firm and steadfast determination to live rightly.

Love's Reawakening -:-

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

The Conspirators Change Route to City

"No doubt you can," Dicky replied. "I've known you to do worse jobs. But your car will look like a rusty road tank when you get through."

His friend briefly consigned the car to a place where it would not need alcohol in the radiator, tossed me an ironic "Sorry, Lady Fair," and turned back to Dicky.

"Remember I lived in these woods when I was 'Red-bearded Ike, the terror of all kings,'" he mocked, and I had a sudden instant's recollection of those weeks of suspense before his return to wife, home and civilization.

Dicky, alone, had shared his confidence in that dread time, and Dicky made swift apology.

"Humbly begging your pardon, I remain, yours very truly, Richard Graham, Esquire," he said. "Anything you want me to do?"

"Yes. How were you going to get that bicycle back to Jim?"

"Lock it, and leave it standing against a tree anywhere along this road. Jim's going to come along here just after daylight and retrieve it."

"Good! Let's hope nobody beats Jim to the retrieving," Mr. Underwood said. "But I never met anybody on this road, so it's probably safe. So prop the bike against the nearest tree and hop on this left running board. You'll have to be careful about branches in your eyes—stop me if you meet one—but you can be of much use as a nice, pretty semaphore. There's a branch path a few hundred feet back of us that I can ease the car into. Then we can head back to the farmhouse and beat it to Bridgehampton and the Montauk highway. If Veritzen plays Tabby at the rathole for any length of time, we'll easily get to Hampton Bays first. Then we'll turn off to Riverhead again and get the edge on him into the city. I'll smuggle you into our apartment, Noel, and you'll be incommunicado until you give the word."

We reached the path of which Harry had spoken without any mishap, and then Dicky climbed into the seat beside Mr. Underwood.

"We won't stop to make any explanation at the farmhouse," Harry said. "If Jim comes out we can toss him a word and then, 'On to New York!'"

"You can make better time back through the woods," Dicky commented. "You did all the log removing on the way in."

"Oh! I'm the merry little forester," Harry said, and spoke no more until we had cleared the woods and were approaching the barn.

"It's all right, Jim," he said hurriedly. "Bike by a big oak tree about half way in. We're going by way of Bridgehampton. If they come back and question you, remember nobody came down to the farm tonight, or went away from it."

No one of us spoke until we had passed Hampton Bays and turned on the road to Riverhead. Then Harry Underwood gave a low chuckle.

"Guess we outwitted the old fox that time. You see he hasn't any real knowledge that we were down there. And when he gets tired of watching that wood road outlet, he'll take his profane way back to the city again, and watch the hotel until it's time for him to meet that earliest train from Sag Harbor. We won't take the car to the hotel. I'll signal a taxi when we're near the garage and have the driver follow us there. Then we'll beat it over to the hotel in it. Dicky, you rush Noel upstairs and I'll sew up the night clerk and the elevator-telephone combination so they'll see nothing, hear nothing, and, especially, speak nothing if old Phil comes browsing around."

Noel turned to me and spoke in a half whisper.

"When can I talk to you alone? I must tell you what my father wrote to me—about Mary—before I meet him again." . . . .

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Evening Dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be proper for me to wear a white satin dress for evening? What color slippers and stockings would be appropriate to wear with it?

M. K.

If the white satin dress is an evening dress, indeed it is proper for you to wear it in the evening. And if it is becoming to you you are a fortunate person, for, to my taste, nothing is lovelier for evening wear than a charming white satin dress of soft, lovely satin, made in simple lines. But of course this is not becoming to a large, stout woman, for white emphasizes size, and satin takes lights that also emphasize size.

White satin slippers and white silk-chiffon stockings are most harmonious with a white satin evening dress. And sometimes silver slippers with white stockings are beautifully effective. But try to preserve the harmony of the white loveliness of the satin.

The Former Fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently become engaged. About a year ago I was practically engaged to another man, but it was broken off by mutual consent. Would it be right to send him an announcement? We are still very good friends.

BETTY.

By all means send an announcement to this friend. It will show that you have a sure social sense instead of a narrow point of view.

Household Hints

When the floor mop becomes matted and does not do its work well, take a clothespin and comb the mop as you would with an ordinary comb. It will straighten out the tangles beautifully.

If you wish the cold ham to look particularly nice for your luncheon, plunge it into ice water right from the boiling water in which it has been cooked. The fat will harden white and firm and the meat will be a fine color.

A nice engagement or shower gift for the bride can be made by covering a hat box with cretonne. In it put a bunch of dusters, one of tea towels, one of dishcloths and one of different-sized chamois cloths. This practical gift will be greeted with delight by the future housekeeper.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Every simple hygienic habit is a help to the complexion—a well-balanced diet, the daily bath, drinking plenty of water, getting sufficient sleep, keeping cheerful and using complexion creams generously.

A new toothbrush should stand for an hour in a strong salt and soda solution. Add a half teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of soda to half a glass of water. The salt strengthens the bristles but the main idea is to cleanse the brush thoroughly.

That woman who, when indignant, clicks her teeth together like a beartrap will eventually grow deep lines from the sides of the nose down beyond the corners of the mouth. For the sake of the expression of the face the lips should not be wholly relaxed; to insure against wrinkles they should not be kept tensed and tight.

Brittle finger nails are due to conditions of the physical system. Milk is the perfect food for producing healthier hair and finger nails. When the nails break easily, they should be soaked every night in warm olive oil or touched with cold cream.

Chapped skin is due to ravages of the wind to atmospheric dust, sudden changes of climate, hard water or the use of harsh soaps. If the cuticle is tender it is advisable to substitute oatmeal for soap and to anoint the complexion twice a day with a soothing cosmetic.

Burning feet can be soothed and comforted by anointing with cold cream, massaging it in for five or 10 minutes, and then wrapping the feet in turkish towels which have been wrung out of ice cold water. Lisle stockings are sometimes more comfortable for tender feet than silk.

Horoscopes

Thursday, January 1

The new year is ushered in, as far as daily transits are concerned, under the gracious regency of the planet Venus, which bears rule over all pleasure, festivity, celebration, friendship, romance and all activities of a social, domestic, artistic and sentimental nature. Aside from these pleasurable engagements there are signs of some minor perplexities or anxieties, with hazard in employment and hints of treachery or subterfuge. This same sign warns of menace or personal danger through poisons, vitiated beverages or foods, even "poison letters."

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of great social, domestic, artistic and affectional progress and happiness, but only those forms of business catering to such activities may be considered auspiciously protected. Employment is under a hazardous ray, and there are many signs of anxiety and personal danger through fraud.

A day of unexpected activity and change of more than passing importance is presaged from the strong place of Uranus in the ruling chart. The events will be of far-reaching and radical effect on the life, and will be accelerated by the progressive and energetic Mars stimulating to bold adventures and enterprises. A friendly beam from Jupiter hints of financial success and a degree of gratified ambitions, but other testimonies sound a note of some discouragement.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of most important change of far-reaching and wholly unexpected nature. It may involve travel and new occupation, environment and interests. The spirit of initiative and constructive ability and invention will be highly stimulated into bold action, while Jupiter lends friendly financial aid. But there are disruptions and hazards, too, and women may wield a disquieting influence.

A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped with original talents, initiative and constructive ability. It should have a spectacular and lively career.

GULF COAST

Got a few days? Trade them for a coat of tan and the health that goes with it. The Gulf Coast is just a day or so away. Roses bloom there in February. People who have learned to live and plan to live a long time, spend days there every winter, resting, rebuilding. Golf courses everywhere; play a different one every day. The Gulf and streams are full of fish. Duck are calling from the marshes. Roads and riding paths beckon.

The Popular Winter Playgrounds are Reached Over the L. & N. Liberal Stopovers Enable You to Visit Several Places on One Trip. Plan by the Map.

NEW ORLEANS

It's winter in New Orleans. Old Pierre is cutting roses behind the high French wall where he has been gardener for a hundred years or so. Fashionables from the North, South, East and West are watching races on a sun-drenched track. Happy throngs are passing in and out of famous old restaurants, sitting in quaint court yards. Leave Cincinnati or Louisville on The Pan-American one morning; arrive in New Orleans the next. Enjoy the Mardi Gras festivities February 12-17.

SOUTHWEST

Come where bells of Spanish missions chime, where blue mountains rise from red deserts, the land of the cowboy, the Indian and the troubador. The L. & N. connects at New Orleans with routes through the Southwest to Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, El Paso, Grand Canyon, Carlsbad Caverns and California.

STOCK MARKET LIST LIFTED QUIETLY

Wall Street More Hopeful As New Year Approaches; Steel and Rails Gain

The security markets lifted quietly, as though freed from a mighty burden. Although the past 12 months have largely cured the stock market of its fevers of excessive enthusiasm, the turn of a new year engenders fresh hope. And in view of the enormous deflation accomplished, Wall street feels that its hopes rest on a firmer basis than those of a year ago, when it was still deluded with "new era" theories of economics.

The completion of tax selling, the prospect of a fair reinvestment demand from the $1,000,000,000 in January 1 interest and dividends, together with somewhat more favorable than expected mid-week business statistics, helped the advance in share prices, which embraced virtually all sections of the list. Trading turned dull after the first hour.

Some bankers feel that the new year is starting with an excess of pessimism, comparable to the unwarranted optimism of a year ago, but they acknowledge that this may tend to prevent discouraging false starts toward recovery. So far as the stock market is concerned, brokers point out that even with fair improvement in the early part of 1931, corporate earnings will fall below the early months of 1930, so that comparisons will be unfavorable.

Steel issues were helped by expectations of a seasonal pickup in ingot production in January, possibly carrying operations up to 50 per cent of capacity. Even the oils were firm, although the week's petroleum statistics showed another large gain in gasoline in storage.

The utility shares were one of the firmer groups. The week's figures for electric power production showed a seasonal drop, but compared more favorably with the past two years than any previous week in December. Freight car loadings for the pre-Christmas week dropped 30,633 cars, less than usual for that week.

Call money renewed at 3½ per cent, then dropped to 3, indicating that the year-end firmness was relaxing somewhat sooner than usual.

Sinclair Advances Price of Gasoline

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Effective tomorrow, an advance of ½ cent a gallon in tank car price of gasoline at Marcus Hook, Pa., and Tremeley Point, N. J., has been made by Sinclair Refining Company and of ¾ cent at Tiverton, R. I. The new price is uniformly 7 cents a gallon at Atlantic Coast points, with the exception of Tiverton, R. I., where the new price is 7¼ cents.

Important Accumulation Deemed Lacking in Steel Common.

Wall Street has long regarded the record of stockholders on the books of the steel corporation for dividends at the end of a quarter as indicative of either accumulation or distribution of the stock as the case may be. Current figures do not suggest any important accumulation has been in progress. At any rate the total of common stockholders on the books for the December dividend was 141,907 setting a new record as compared with a total of 135,504 three months ago, 120,918 a year ago and 105,612 at the end of the second quarter of 1929 just prior to the break in the market. The number of preferred stockholders on the other hand has been contracting steadily with the November dividend having been paid to 59,171 persons, compared with 59,949 in August and 64,791 in May of last year.

Upward of 1,050 individual common and preferred stocks were traded in last week on the stock exchange and of that total 163 issues were selling to return a yield of 10 to 15 per cent, 49 more to yield 15 to 20 per cent and 22 stocks above 20 per cent. Such high yields must naturally be interpreted as suggesting at least a good measure of uncertainty regarding the maintenance of current dividend rates by numerous companies. But it also must be interpreted as indicating that such dividend cuts as may be in store for most stocks have been pretty thoroughly discounted marketwise. In addition to the foregoing high yielding stocks, the active list last week included some 355 stocks on which no dividends whatsoever are being paid.

That the railroad list had been harboring a rather sizeable short account became evident with the news from Washington yesterday quoting President Hoover on the agreement reached among heads of the four big Eastern trunk lines on the matter of consolidation. The President's statement coming at midday comprised the first really big piece of favorable news which the market has enjoyed in many months. While the street had been well aware of the recent conferences of railway heads, and had surmised the President had had a hand in bringing them together, it was not wholly prepared for the actual announcement when it broke. There was a rush of urgent covering in the railroad stocks, particularly in the Eastern group which brought gains of 2 to 7 points in Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio.

It is readily conceivable that various changes will be in order before the realignment of properties involved by the four-system plan is finally completed. The Interstate Commerce Commission has shown a leaning toward favoring a fifth trunk line, even after weighing all arguments heretofore on the side of the four-system plan. Interest at the moment is rife in the probable ultimae disposition of four roads which received no mention in the plan put forward yesterday, namely the Western Maryland, Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Delaware and Hudson and the Pittsburgh and West Virginia. The Baltimore and Ohio, it will be recalled, was ordered some time back to divest itself of its holdings of Western Maryland, but the time for complying with the order has been set ahead until July next year.

Those who at first regarded the drop in the New York Reserve Bank's rediscount rates to 2 per cent as a "gesture" now regard it as a master stroke in the process of hastening business recovery. Most of the stock market experts still advise caution in prime and second-grade bonds to the proportion of about one-half of available investment funds. There will be time to acquire dividend-paying stocks when brighter signs appear on the industrial horizon.

The severe decline witnessed in second-grade bonds in the last three months has more than discounted outstanding uncertainties, according to Standard Statistics Company, which is now recommending purchase of a selected number of these bonds. A list of 72 second-grade public utility, industrial, foreign and American railroad bonds is suggested for investment (and speculation) on the following conditions: (1) That they be considered speculative, (2) that only a moderate portion of surplus funds be so employed, (3) that temporary price fluctuations be disregarded, and (4) that not more than 10 issues be included in any one portfolio.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—The curb market was in a happy new year mood today and prices took an upward flip. Gains, although moderate with few exceptions, were well distributed and such tax selling as remained for the final session of 1930 was easily absorbed. Short covering was fairly substantial.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Kitty Admits to Connie That She Likes Jim

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a produce of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty. Connie sees Kitty and learns of her laborious daily struggle for existence. Kitty goes home with Connie and is welcomed by Mrs. Calvert. When Jim visits he takes an interest in Kitty. Connie, believing Jim a philanderer, is concerned for Kitty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII.

Connie was upstairs when Jim Tracy arrived, but Kitty was downstairs waiting.

"We're going out now," she called upstairs. Then in a low voice, Connie heard her ask, "We won't be gone long, will we?"

Jim Tracy's reply was lost, but he called upstairs to Connie—"Don't you want to come along, Connie?"

"Thanks, but I can't get away," Connie said, coming down the stairs. "I want to look in on mother for an hour or two."

"Right!" Jim exclaimed. "Well, we'll be back in time for dinner, anyway. You might ask a fellow in to eat, Connie. Remember, it's your fault that I'm loafing around and lonesome with a lot of empty honeymoon time on my hands to kill."

Connie Alarmed

"Of course; come back to dinner, Jim," she told him "Don't let him try to teach you to drive in the traffic, Kitty. Make him keep on a quiet road."

The dinner hour had come and gone; Connie and her mother, who had come downstairs, ate alone, but Jim and Kitty had not returned. Mrs Calvert, still careful of expending her nervous energy until she was a bit stronger, went back upstairs.

"It seems like I can't get enough rest," she said, "but I'll be all right in a few days. You might look in before you go to bed, dear, and if I'm sleeping don't bother me."

Connie, alone and waiting in the deepening dusk on the veranda, made a sharp effort to arouse herself out of what threatened to become an annoying state of suspicion. It began to appear as though Jim and Kitty were deliberately disregarding her. She told herself, thank heaven, that she was not jealous. It was only that she wanted to shield Kitty from what, inevitably, would be a serious error.

These thoughts gave a fictitious value to the time Connie waited; when Kitty and Jim returned it was only 9 o'clock, yet it seemed hours later. They had been delayed, it developed, by a flat tire.

"We happened to be right close to a little roadhouse, so we thought we'd stay and eat while the man fixed the tire," Kitty explained.

Kitty Happier

Apparently, neither of them had thought to phone Connie; this, in itself, indicated an unvisioned absorption, one with the other. Connie's gaze, growing acute, noted an indefinable change in Kitty. The girl's eyes were brighter, there was a new warmth in her manner; the faint sparks of rebellion in her seemed to have been extinguished by a winsome quality.

"How did the driving lessons come along?" Connie asked.

"Great, for a beginner," Jim answered. "Of course, no girl can learn to drive a car in one afternoon. It will take a week, at least, before I'd feel safe to trust her on the road alone."

There was an exchange of glances between Jim and Kitty. About Jim, too, Connie detected a faint exhilaration. Only a few days ago, he had imagined himself heart-broken and crushed because Connie had refused to marry him, but now his spirits seemed feather-like light.

"I say, Connie, your sister is a peach!" he explained, spontaneously. "She's a great little package of heart balm. You don't mind if I rush her around a bit, do you?"

"No, I mean it, honestly," Jim announced. "I was low as the devil and I needed a new personality to stir me up and take my mind off my troubles. I don't think either of you realize what a shock it was to me to be virtually kicked out of the house on my alleged wedding day. I'm sort of the family responsibility and you can't dodge me. Somebody has got to look out for me."

He was smiling, but his tone was half serious. Kitty was looking at him with a concentrated gaze.

"I refuse absolutely to get myself heart-broken over your situation," Connie told him. "You're not one-tenth as stricken as you pretend to be. You're having the time of your life."

Recites Poetry

"You made me what I am today, and I hope you're satisfied," Jim responded. "I'm only a shell of my former self, and it's all your fault. If it weren't for your very nice sister, I'd be a wretched outcast. My hair would probably turn white in a night and I'd get to talking to myself. It's a work of mercy that Kitty's doing."

"Who's he kidding—you or me?" Kitty asked.

"Himself, I think," Connie said. "Pay no attention to him, dear, he's a wretch."

"You're a funny one," Kitty commented to Jim. "I never met a fellow before that could talk that way. You know what he was doing this afternoon, Connie, while the man at the roadhouse was getting our dinner ready? He was reciting poems to me, all from right out of his head. They must have amounted to pages."

"I know—Keats and Shelly," Connie responded. "I've heard them a dozen times."

"Well, they didn't make much sense, but they certainly used up a lot of language," Kitty said, carelessly. "Jim's the first fellow I ever met that could reel off that stuff. You got to hand it to him—he knows his onions along that line. I wonder if all these society fellows talk that way, do they, Connie?"

"No, I think poetry is Jim's private specialty," Connie told her.

"I spent four long years memorizing those poems, and what credit do I get?" Jim exclaimed, facetiously. "I'm not appreciated here and I'm going home." He picked up his hat and paused a moment—"but I'll be back tomorrow."

When he had gone the girls sat smoking and looking out over the moonlit lawn.

Kitty was silent for a measurable space of time before she answered; then—

"I'm crazy about him, Connie!"

DAILY TRUE STORY — The Saga of Sam

"You could come in for a cup of tea, perhaps, Mrs. Hansen?"

"For why?"

"For why should anyone have a cup of tea?" Sam Turner said, smiling at the buxom Mrs. Hansen. "Because it is warm and cheering and a bit of talk is restful," he answered his own query.

"Warm tea! It's like a man to like warm tea. To be fit to drink it must be hot."

"Hot it shall be. Why not step in for a bit? Are you afraid of me?" He chuckled as though this were a delightful absurdity.

"The grandfather of the man I fear hasn't been born," Mrs. Hansen retorted.

Sam had three neat little rooms and a bath in the basement of the immense and exclusive apartment block where he presided as janitor.

He had known Mrs. Hansen more than six months, or since the building was completed, and both met there as they came to take their new jobs.

Sam was a bachelor, 40, active, yet a mild-mannered man. Mrs. Hansen was only 30, and widowed since the war. To Sam she was about the most attractive woman he had ever met and the first one who ever caused him a sigh of regret over his state of single blessedness.

"I'll have a bit of tea, Sam, and thanks. I've finished upstairs and I'm tired."

"Not so bad, for a bachelor, is it?" he asked as he saw her looking about the room.

Vida looked about. She was mentally rearranging the furniture.

"If it were mine, Sam, I'd put the radio between the two windows and the couch against that blank wall."

Sam Proposes

"It will be yours if you'll only say the word, Mrs. Hansen, and then you could glue the furniture to the ceiling or whatever you wanted."

"Now, Sam, I knew it! You ask me in for a bit of tea and start proposing," she turned to go.

The mistress of the linens and the superintendent of fuels of the mammoth apartment block sipped tea and talked shop, of this and that tenant, of the agent of the place and sundry topics.

"I must run. We've some new girls starting today in the maid service and I have to watch them when they get out the table linens."

"And then you'll go 10 blocks to wherever it is you room and get wet in the rain, when you might marry me and have your home right here?"

"Being married once was more than plenty, thanks."

"Oh, I think of a man, occasionally. Where's the harm?"

"Of me?"

"Of a man, I said."

"What am I, a flying squirrel or a cabbage?"

Vida Hansen sat down again.

"Saga?"

"Yes."

"Have I got a saga?"

"That's the trouble, you haven't."

"What is a saga?"

"It is a song or a story of heroism. Our folks expect bravery in their men. What has been your brave deed? How brave are you? Have you any record of heroism to make a saga?"

"Heroism? Not that I know of. I was first assistant engineer on a transport during the war but I had to enlist. I'd have been drafted. I guess I have no saga."

Mrs. Hansen Leaves

"And there you are, Sam. If I marry again it must be to a man with a saga."

"Aw, now, Mrs. Hansen, you and your hot air about a saga—quit fooling and say you'll marry me."

"No, Sam. Thanks for the tea. We'll stay as we are, good friends."

Mrs. Hansen went up in the service elevator to the linen storeroom and Sam went out to the furnace room, but he merely glanced about without seeing much.

"Saga," he would mutter to himself, "Saga — that's dumb nonsense!"

Vida Hansen meant all that she said. Because of her Norse ancestry, she was drilled in the belief that every man worthy the name should be a hero.

Sam believed there was hope for him so long as he and Mrs. Hansen remained good friends and no other rival appeared. But he believed that the other rival had appeared, Tom Donley, a "trouble shooter" for the electric light people. Tom was big and husky and it seemed to Sam that he found things to do in the Walloon Towers, especially with the wiring up in the linen storeroom, far too often.

When Tom had shown Mrs. Hansen the newspaper stories about his heroism out in the country the time that live wires were blown down on a school house, she talked about him a great deal to Sam.

"What a saga that man has—climbing up and cutting away deadly wires to save the kiddies!" she said.

"He probably thought it was a bother to make him hustle out there when he might have been playing pinochle at the power station."

Mrs. Hansen glared scornfully at Sam.

And Sam got so that he hated to see Tom about there with his emergency kit for he knew Mrs. Hansen would be with him all of her spare time. And now that Mrs. Hansen had put a cot in the linen store room and slept there, it made matters worse.

The night that the Van-Gelts had their big party there Sam saw a tall man with a black box coming up the basement corridor. This was the limit, Tom Donley sneaking up to see Mrs. Hansen at this hour! Sam wouldn't stand for it.

Sam popped out from his door as the man got along. He had it all planned. He would give him a terrific kick in the abdomen and lay him out and pretend that he thought it was some burglar.

He administered the kick and the big man went down. At once three other men appeared One rushed for the black box and the other pulled a gun, as Sam could see in the dim corridor light.

Sam kicked the man in the face as he stopped to pick up the black box and Sam grabbed the box. It was fortunate that he stooped then, for the first man shot at him and he wasn't there. Sam lifted the box and slammed it in the midriff of the man with the gun. By that time he got the gun and took a shot at the third man trying to run away.

Captures Robbers

He forgot the man he had kicked in the face and this chap wiped the blood from his eyes and shot Sam through the hip—a scratch. Sam shot back. The cops came.

The reason they came so soon was because they had already been sent for. Four thugs had lined up the guests at the Van-Gelt party above and cleaned them out of money and jewels.

It was a kiss.

"Oh, Sam, my hero!" she said. "What a hero you are—and what a saga can be sung about you now! I'm going to write my folks in Norway all about it!"

"Wait until tomorrow, Vida, and then you can sign yourself Mrs. Sam Turner."

Frisby's Big Game Camera Out for Good Time

It is customary for this department every year, beginning this year, to award Honorable Mention for the invention of the past 12 months which promises to be of the greatest help to mankind. We have therefore been very busy during the last few minutes thumbing over available data, which consists of the above picture, thoughtfully slipped under the door by Congressman Frisby, who left a note explaining the various uses to which he intends to put his portable big game camera and one man underworld peeping disguise. "With this ingenious device," says Frisby, "I hope to make the rounds of speakeasies, take pictures as evidence for my friends and at the same time spy on ladies who, I am told, carry on most wildly on New Year's Eve. My arrangement permits me to lie prone, resting on one elbow. This enforcement periscope, as I call it, will be pushed by volunteers who are asked to meet on prominent street corners tonight, dressed in plain, but well fitting uniform with the words "Out for a Good Time" embroidered on the cap."

Propaganda Among Churchmen

Through an ingenious combination of wheels within wheels, an attempt is on foot to concentrate the influence of all the Protestant churches of America in behalf of a political question now before the Senate. A "Commission on International Justice and Good Will," apparently created by the "Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America," and engineered by a skilled propagandist, now announces that an alarm is to be sent throughout the country, calling upon all church members to bombard their senators in behalf of the so-called World Court.

In the name of peace and international good will the churches are to be drawn into a political agitation. The circular note accompanying the blank petitions which are distributed does not hesitate to make a misleading statement of fundamental importance in connection with the World Court issue. It asserts that the reservations made by the Senate "have been met by the protocols submitted by the President on December 10, 1930 . . . If action thus taken by the Senate after careful and thorough deliberation is now to be repudiated, the foreign relations of the United States cannot be carried on."

[illegible]tement is so grossly misleading that it can hardly [illegible]ct of ignorance. It deserves the immediate atten[illegible]entlemen who have lent their names to the propaganda, in order that they may not be criticized as deliberate participants in a scheme to delude members of the churches.

Instead of "meeting" the Senate's reservation, the formula now submitted to the Senate proposes to reverse the conditions imposed by the Senate. The Senate insisted that the World Court, without the consent of the United States, should not consider any request for an advisory opinion on any question affecting the United States. The formula now proposed would permit the court to consider such requests, notwithstanding the objection of the United States.

A careful scrutiny of the formula by any church member [illegible]ntiate the fact here asserted. But the propagandist [illegible]lling this plan to embroil the churches in this politi[illegible] now tries to make it appear that if the Senate [illegible]t upon its reservation it will be "repudiating" its [illegible]nuary, 1926. He adds the preposterous statement [illegible] the World Court treaty is ratified the foreign rela[illegible] United States cannot be carried on. In other words, [illegible]Senate ratifies the World Court treaty, the United [illegible]s find itself cut off from diplomatic communication [illegible]ther nations.

[illegible]n propaganda, directed at church members who cannot [illegible]ected to make individual examination of the facts con[illegible]g the so-called World Court, is nothing short of a [illegible]dle. It is an attempt to take advantage of the peace-loving [illegible]iment of citizens in order to push through a scheme to en[illegible]gle the United States in a foreign political system. Every [illegible]rch member who receives one of these circulars should take [illegible] time to study the question personally. He can soon verify [illegible] fact that clever propagandists are at work attempting to [illegible]ceive him.

Where the Onus Lies

Babcock's Action Places Responsibility for Town Hall Squarely on Armstrong.

Whatever the motive that inspired County Commissioner E. V. Babcock to move that the Nicola site in the Schenley Farms district be bought for the Town Hall, he deserves credit for at last speaking out.

Babcock and Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong almost invariably act in unison. That Armstrong did not second Babcock's motion, and that Babcock apparently did not expect a second—these things raise the suspicion that it was "a put-up job," not intended to accomplish anything.

None the less Babcock deserves credit; for he has placed himself officially on record as willing to proceed with the Town Hall project and willing to vote for a site.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern, commendably outspoken, has long been willing to act on the plan one way or another.

Armstrong's—and Armstrong's alone—is the onus for frustrating what he himself referred to at one time as the mandate of the people.

Joseph Ramsey's Dream

Part of It May Yet Come True if L. F. Loree's Plan For New Railroad Is Approved.

The disclosure that the Pittsburgh and West Virginia [illegible]d would like to sell the county its bridge across the Mo[illegible] along with the tunnel under Mt. Washington, for [illegible] vehicles, recalls the dream of Joseph Ramsey, Jr.

It was Mr. Ramsey who, as president of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Railway (the old name for the Pittsburgh and West Virginia), built the bridge and tunnel. Mr. Ramsey was at the same time president of the Wabash, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Western Maryland and other Gould lines, and it was his dream to unite them into a great transcontinental system passing through Pittsburgh. It was not to be.

Mr. Ramsey was born in Pittsburgh, was educated at the Western University of Pennsylvania (now the University of Pittsburgh), and began his brilliant railroad career here. He dreamed of improving his native city's transportation service.

Part of the dream called for a new railroad across Pennsylvania, to be called the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago. That part of it may yet come true, for it is the same line which "Oh Loree proposes to construct if the Interstate Commerce Kitty mission grants permission.

Peril in Old Mines

Death of Five Boys Directs Attention to a Situation Badly in Need of Correction.

The death of the five boys who were killed by poisonous [illegible]ors in an abandoned mine near Arlington avenue is a dis[illegible]enossing reminder of a situation badly in need of correction.

Not often are persons killed in this way in old mines. Fre[illegible]migently, however, abandoned mines are responsible for other [illegible]bed. They catch fire. They cave in. They pour out sulphur [illegible]don't [illegible]age to pollute the streams.

Con[illegible]Coroner W. J. McGregor says he will ask owners of all [illegible]light [illegible]doned mines in the county to seal the entrances.

Con[illegible]It is too bad that it has taken a tragedy to call forth this [illegible]he d[illegible]and for action to promote safety.

Why Not Both?

By Nelson Harding

The liquor ships from foreign ports
Stay twelve miles out from shore,
And where they are obliged to halt

Like League Court propaganda ships
That are not wanted here,
In fact, for foreign tanglements

Why Wait Till It Falls

This Club Hits Hard.

Indecency on the stage has reached a point where the stage must either clean up or be cleaned up.

Some of the productions offered to the public in the current year have transcended all bounds of "art." They can be classified only as pornography, open and unashamed.

Such exhibitions are a menace to morals, and especially to the morals of the younger generation. They undo much of the constructive and character-building effort of the school, the church and the home.

They are a symptom of decadence, and should be cut out of the city's life, as a surgeon cuts a tumor out of a human body.

The stage itself can cut them out, effectively and painlessly. It can submit itself to some form of voluntary censorship, or to the scrutiny of an intelligent and liberal board like that which supervises motion pictures in New York.

If the stage does not do that, and do it soon, it incurs the grave risk of being subjected to a rigorous and unintelligent censorship—which would be a disaster not only to the stage, but, in the long run, to the cause of reform also.

The vast majority of the public is sick of smut, sick of the purveyors of smut, and sick of those people who pay to see smut.

It wants the smut eliminated, and if the theater will not eliminate it, then other means will be taken to eliminate it.

The best minds in the theater business realize this fact. They urge a voluntary censorship, both to clean up the theater and to avert the fanatical type of supervision which might otherwise be imposed on them.

It is to be hoped that the theatrical business as a wh[illegible] will follow this wise counsel—for if it does not, it will be [illegible]le only cleaned UP, but cleaned OUT. [illegible]not

THAT VERSATILE, LORD KELVIN

By Archibald Henderson

Lord Kelvin was all that a scientist should be, according to the evidence of those who knew him best. In his youth, he was precocious to the point of genius; and in later life belied the rule of failure by fully justifying the astonishing precocity of his youthful years. As a writer he was lucid, engaging and impressive, winning the interest of the reader much as Faraday was able to do. He was genuinely modest, and even to an extreme degree.

When his jubilee was celebrated by a great gathering at Glasgow University in 1896, he replied to the demonstration with the following note of humility: "One word characterizes the most strenuous of the efforts for the advancement of science that I have made perseveringly for the last fifty-five years; that word is —failure.

"I know no more of electric and magnetic force, or of the relation between ether, electricity and ponderable matter, or of chemical affinity, than I knew and tried to teach my class students in my first session as professor."

As a lecturer Lord Kelvin must have been very much like the famous mathematician, Sylvester. His thoughts came hot from the forge of his cerebration; it is probable that few of his students had the faintest notion of what he was talking about.

He lectured two hours a morning four days a week, and it is said that no sooner was his back turned to the class than a considerable number of the class would silently steal from the lecture room. On one occasion the good-natured scientist, aware of the defection, would observe, with a twinkle in his eye, that "there seemed to be a curious gradual diminution of density in the upper part of the lecture room."

Lord Kelvin's researches took an extraordinarily wide range. He was perhaps equally famous as scientist and inventor. Throughout his life he delivered many important addresses, which attracted international attention.

His published papers numbered upward of six hundred, and there is no record of the great number of his inventions. For 53 years he held the chair of natural philosophy at the University of Glasgow. After he resigned his chair in 1899, he showed no relaxation of interest in scientific pursuits, no slackening of interest in the scientific thought of the day.

One of the most singular things about this inventive genius was that he was personally unable to handle the refined instruments manufactured in accordance with his designs and directions. So impulsive, so electrical in energy, was this startling figure that he was almost sure to break the delicate instrument almost as soon as he laid his hands upon it.

It is perhaps true that his inventions were of more service to humanity than his purely mathematical work. But it is certain that he could not have carried out his inventions had he not been a mathematical thinker. His work, based upon the soundest mathematical theory, in connection with submarine cables, was particularly noteworthy.

He warned the engineers that the prevailing theories were wrong, and that the cables would not stand the excessively heavy strain of the powerful current they were going to use. The current tore the cable to pieces; and the engineers had to accept the humiliation of following Lord Kelvin's directions.

Lord Kelvin's mirror-galvanometer, syphon-recorder, electric measuring instruments, improved mariner's compass, and deep-sea sounding machine were among his outstanding inventions. Almost all his inventions were employed in a practical way. Full of years and honors, Lord Kelvin died at the age of 83, December 17, 1907.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Father—
I face another year today—
My thoughts now on the days that are no more,
Now turning to the untried days ahead—
There are so many things I'd like to say.

I'd like to say, "The dead past is quite dead.
Today you start anew—unhampered—free—
Free from old lies and laziness and fear
And all the score of your stupidity—
The debts are cancelled, the account is closed;

But this you also know—it can't be done!
The past is never dead—we're never free
From our old folly and its consequences;
We cannot saw the shackles that we forged;
We can't escape the harvest that we sowed.

Can make their choices, build a heaven or hell,
But for each choice there is a price to pay,
And certain obligation to be borne.....
We still must limp, though we have grown wings!

And so I know I can't start fresh today,
Nor cut my future free from all my past.
I must go, patched and tattered, scarred and soiled.
By all the mishaps of my wanderings.
So help me make the best of what I have!
Give me the patience to endure my limp
When I see others racing, light of heel,
Give me humility to stand my stains;
When I see cleaner lives pass by, unmarred,
Give me the honesty to face my debts,
And pay each nagging, shameful reckoning
Without self-pity or an envious snarl
At happier souls who have no debts to pay.

Above all, Father, give me cheerfulness,
So others watching may feel life's worth while—
No matter what the price or penalty—
And give me, too, such courage and good sense
That I may not forget that fact myself!

This is my prayer as now I face the year—
Will You, who made life such an uphill job,
Help me, who did not always make the grade?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Prayer in War

Lord Christ, whose tender soul abhors
The myriad miseries of wars,
Look down from Heaven's blue battlements
On plain and mountain, white with tents;
See how Earth trembles to the tread
Of marching men and how her dead
Battalion by battalion pass,

Thou, who turned water into wine,
Change grosser souls to spirits fine;
Change greed and hate to charity,
All men as brothers let us see.
Thine ancient promise still we hold
As when the Red Sea backward rolled;
To Thee all things are possible,
Lord Christ, we ask a miracle!

Text for Today My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous.—I John, ii:1.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Wherefore my daughters do the damsels of Babylon continue to embroider luncheon sets and to buy glamorous pajamas, wherewith to fill their hope chests?

* * *

For, alas, though the hope chests be larger and fuller, the HOPES continue to grow smaller and fainter, with the passing of the years.

Verily, the world is full of men; but men are full of wariness and cynicism. Their hearts are covered with mail and their emotions are insulted. How, then, shall ANY woman find favor in their sight?

* * *

For, lo, if a damsel returneth a man's kisses and permitteth his pettings, he yawneth, saying, "Ho-hum! She is like unto all others! Yea, she is TOO easy!" And he departeth in boredom.

* * *

But if she spurneth his kisses and putteth down his impertinence, he saith, "Ho-hum! She is a flat tire!" And, straightway, he passeth her up and departeth in search of a live one.

* * *

If she is cordial and responsive and full of come-hitherness, he is filled with suspicion and fleeth from her in affright. For he seeth in her smiles only the snare, and perceiveth in her welcome only the HOOK.

* * *

If she is a "good pal" who luggeth her own golf-clubs and lighteth her own cigaret and payeth her own dinner check, he cryeth "feminist!" and shuddereth at the thought of marriage to an Amazon.

But, if she doeth the "feminine" and playeth the "clinging vine" and hangeth upon his coat-lapel, he muttereth scornfully, "Pre-War," and droppeth her for a newer model.

* * *

If she is simple and unsophisticated, and toucheth not the cocktail and laugheth not at the spicy wisecrack, he classifieth her among the dumbbells and the antiques.

* * *

But, if she is a "live wire" and a "wise dame," who handeth him a snappy line, he soon wearieth and is filled with ennui. For, NO man delighteth to play continuous audience to a woman's wit.

* * *

How then, my Daughter, shall the damsels who seek lovers and husbands and dance-partners find favor in the eyes of men? For their curiosity concerning women hath been FED UP. And they are as a small boy in a toyshop. They know not what they WANT! SELAH.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—West 42d street around 9 a. m. has the effervescent surge of rare wine. It is the hour when the clerical musketeers and stenographers, so fair, so young, march across town from Grand Central to shops, stores, offices. Everybody is gay and life seems a gag.

No yowling here though the way be weary and the going rough. Even the crossing cop's smile is cheerier. The white wing whistles. The whole tempo is quick, fluent. Hail, hail, the gang's all here. New York may droop and drag home in the evening, but it skips to work, sniffing the winds of romance.

In the parade are young men who make a better appearance on $35 a week than the rich bloods with charge accounts at the avenue tailors. They know all the newest wise cracks. They can make a 55 cent tie from an auction cart shame a Charvet creation of the Place Vendome.

The young ladies, too, frocked in their basement bargains are more smartly attired than the debutante flapper. They may chew gum and carry tabloids, but there is something imperious in their manner that suggests the pampered show girl. And they indulge no cheap flirtations.

These are supremely fortunates who are not concerned with revolt against tyranny. They have instead created their own world of illusion—a world peopled with such dream gods and goddesses as Rudy Vallee, John Barrymore, Katharine Cornell and the great Greta Garbo.

For a block away you can hear the dainty staccato tick, tick, tick of high heels on the thick glass of sidewalks. It is a swift kaleidoscope cut of life I never tire of watching. It is the one New York phenomenon that will rout me out of bed before noon.

No other class of workers moving along Manhattan streets display such energy and verve. When they suddenly erupt on sidewalks in the morning roar, it is like a torch falling into resinous shavings—a spark, a splutter and a quick, racing flame.

* * *

Two chorus men in a current show are programed as Oxford Hall and Townley Chambers, which sounds like a slice of apartments from upper Riverside Drive.

* * *

And it may be just dandy that on an upper Broadway building window is a sign: "Ye Bew-tee Shoppe" but it seems to me to be putting it on thique.

A rumor persists two Long Island misses from social register families wound up a numb night in a 14th street tatoo salon. Necklaces with bird clasps were tatooed on their swan-like necks, and they are now under treatment of plastic surgeons in Paris in hope of being de-tatooed.

* * *

A new hotel offered the town's most expensive apartment—the top floor at $80,000 or some such silly figure. No tenants were trampled in the rush and it is now a successful breakfast club. But at one-fourth the rental figure.

* * *

Bestowing the name Fifi upon otherwise estimable young ladies seems a panache that gives them annoying self consciousness—a deliberate flair for showing off. In my time I have known five Fifis—four here and one abroad. Each was good looking but obsessed with a notion they must be a hoydenish harum-scarum and always in the spotlight. On the other hand I know of no name that inspires such a becoming calm and old fashioned dignity as Beth. I know several Beths and all, while utterly self-effacing, are types you remember pleasantly.

* * *

There are girls, too, whose beauty is like bright thrusts of lightning that flash in a sombre sky and are seen no more. You see them illuminate Broadway heavens and somehow forget. With no effort to be mean-tempered I think of Lois Moran, Ona Munson, Helen Shipman, Ann Andrews, Margolo Gilmore and three others whose names I cannot even recall. All are gloriously beautiful but to me strangely evanescent.

* * *

It may be a freak of coincidence but in a New York paper this morning I read an editorial that Italy was the only European country that never developed a taste for strong cheese. And later today at the news-reels was a riotous welcoming street demonstration for the prize fighter Primo Carnero in Milan.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Years have not brought you much that is valuable if you have not learned to discipline yourself.

As a young person, you conducted yourself and your affairs about as you pleased—within the provisions of the law, of course.

You indulged expensive desires if you could possibly meet the cost.

You gave little heed to your actions if you believed you had a chance of keeping your escapes a secret.

Of course you have had to assume more responsibilities and curtail some of your pleasures.

But to a great extent you have not carried on with any more discretion in passing years than in your youth.

You have failed to respond to the serious side of life.

You have drifted with the minimum of effort except in your daily work, and even in that, you know you have sometimes neglected important issues.

You have had a good time but what about an overtime job to improve yourself?
